July 26, 2019 -

Dependable Homebuyers, the nation?s leading home-buying company, has determined when the next Columbia real estate recession will likely occur. For those who are planning to buy or sell in the near future, such individuals will want to keep in mind that the next real estate recession will likely occur in 2020. There are a number of real estate professionals and other experts who are pointing to this likelihood. For those who are planning to sell or even buy a home in the near future, it is highly recommended that this is something handled as soon as possible. While the recession isn?t likely to be as catastrophic as the one from over a decade ago, it can still make things extremely difficult.

For those who need to sell quickly, and for those who want to sell for as much money as humanly possible, Dependable Homebuyers is standing by. They have worked with homeowners for a number of years throughout Columbia. Their reputation is peerless. It can be defined by a handful of key elements and considerations. Regardless of the condition of the Columbia real estate market, it seems extremely likely that Dependable Homebuyers will continue to purchase and repurpose homes in bulk. This is a company that has proven over and over again their ability to move with the times.

Higher interest rates are very likely to slow down the speed of raising home values. This is just one element to 2020 that one should keep in mind. Selling a home under even the best of circumstances can be difficult. There are costs to consider, which can quickly skyrocket into the four-digit range. There is also the matter of time. It can take upwards of months, if not longer, for the sale of a home to go through. This doesn?t include the demands inherent in having appraisals and inspections carried out. To say nothing of the demands of someone who is only interested in buying the home.

All of these elements can be in play under the best possible market conditions. During a recession, even the most pristine homes in Columbia can struggle to find a buyer. One must also take into account the fact that rentals are on the rise. More people moving to Columbia are interested in renting than buying than ever before. This is one of the reasons why Dependable Homebuyers has been converting an increasing number of the properties they purchase into rentals. For those who want to avoid the traditional real estate market, regardless of its condition, Dependable Homebuyers can help. Beyond paying fair market value for any home they consider, the company is also highly regarded for making the entire process as straightforward as possible. In most situations, an individual selling their home to the company can have their money in as little as a week. The company also stresses that nothing is expected of the homeowner, in terms of repairs, inspections, or appraisals.

Anyone who is interested in the possibility of working with Dependable Homebuyers will want to contact them for more information.
