

Surf Till 100 Kauai Legendary Surfers Unite To Help Mankind And The Environment

July 30, 2019

Princeville, Hawaii - July 30, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Surf Till 100, which is based in Princeville, Hawaii, has announced that legendary surfers Jeff Hakman and Felipe Pomar from the island of Kauai have united with personal development and leadership coach Tom Woods to help mankind and the environment. They want to share their expertise to help their fellow men and women enjoy healthier and longer lives while making a difference in the world. World renowned surfing champions and coaches Jeff Hakman and Felipe Pomar are both into their 70's and still surfing Hawaii's Big Waves, and are therefore good examples of how to live a healthy lifestyle.

"The knowledge that they share with their free newsletter subscribers is priceless for those people that truly wish to develop the Heart and the Mind of a Champion," says Tom Woods.

He continues, "On their new website currently under development they share their mission and their intention to share the knowledge they have gained to help make a difference in the world that embraces athletic competition, economic and cultural enhancement, environmental advocacy, the arts and childhood education."

Tom Woods points out that they are elders or Kupuna in Hawaii and therefore they are in that stage of their lives where they feel a sense of urgency in view of the unprecedented deterioration in the physical and spiritual health of the global population and threats to the global environment, including war, which people will need to confront if mankind is to survive.

Armed with their pragmatic optimism that human ingenuity can be used to overcome those difficult challenges, the work of Surf Till 100 is focused on creating and developing Wellness, Leadership and Community Building educational programs that can help the common person become uncommonly resilient and a True Champion for Life who transmits the spirit of Aloha throughout their lifetime.

Their primary commitment is to strengthen their fellow men and women in their mind, heart, and body to accomplish a number of objectives. These include helping others make their behavior in line with optimum principles, beliefs, values, and their dreams; helping people to broaden their insight, vision, and understanding and boost their sense of self-worth; helping people know and clarify their God-given purposes in order to rise above mediocrity and become self-created Champions; influencing people to speak, think and act in ways that can make a positive impact in their lives and the lives of others; helping people bring about positive mental, physical, and spiritual changes that are self-perpetuating, permanent, and momentum-building, and contributing to the creation of a sustainable and happy world.

They want to help people become aware that this is a defining moment in time to live the life of a true champion, who is making a significant difference in the world.

Tom Woods points out that it is their belief that life is an adventure; a wave of possibility inviting people to take a creative and rewarding ride; and a great school for the development of character. They also believe that a better future for mankind needs healthy and wise stewardship of the Earth's network of life support systems. They also believe that life is a unified field of waves that people can live in harmony with; and that life is a creative wave of freedom, love, joy, and peace.

Surf Till 100 has made a commitment to encourage and promote a culture of champions. To achieve that, they are teaching evidence-based wellness and leadership programs that will help people obtain the physical vitality, mind and heart of a champion and the ability and willingness to make the world a better place. They are also developing heart-based intelligence in leaders and teams that are actively contributing to the paradigm shift from the usual mentality of survival of the fittest to the mentality which focuses on the survival of the most loving, with a focus on healing, hope, and life.
