Erin Lowe, a spokesperson for All Around Town Towing, explains, "Roadside assistance is an integral component of our towing services. Some people ask for help for different car issues along the road which does not necessarily require towing their vehicles. And that is how the whole idea of roadside assistance was conceptualized."

Winching out service is the closest service related to towing. This involves hauling out a vehicle that got stuck in mud, snow or ditch. The company uses state of the art equipment and powerful tow trucks to tug stranded vehicles safely and quickly. In this type of service, care and caution are their major priority to prevent any damage or scratches to vehicles or properties.

The company also offers jumpstart service, which is the most frequent roadside assistance that motorists call for. Apparently, drained batteries cannot be monitored unless a car conks out. This may be caused by loose cables, extreme weather conditions or faulty charging among others. Motorists unfamiliar with jumpstarting procedures should not attempt to DIY. Mismatching cables can be dangerous and cause serious damage to vehicles. All Around Town Towing have professional workers who are knowledgeable on jumpstarting dead batteries. They can perform the procedure with efficiency and safety using proper equipment and security measures.

Flat tire changing is another typical roadside help that motorists often require. While the procedure may not be rocket science, changing tires is nevertheless dangerous if not done properly. Untightened lug nuts can damage wheels or even cause accidents due to wobbling. Improperly placed jacks can cause vehicle instability which is prone to accident. Thus, all tow workers of the company were adequately trained to be skilled tire changers. They can remove a flat tire and replace it with a spare quickly without compromising quality and safety.

All Around Town Towing also specializes in car lockout assistance. This applies to vehicles whose keys are left inside or whose car security system malfunctioned leaving drivers locked outside. The company's tow workers have been technically trained to handle and manage car locks and security systems. They are skilled and competent in opening car doors with ease to help get drivers back on the road without further ado.

Our various roadside assistance support is designed to help customers get back safely on the road as soon as possible, Lowe explains. We exhaust all options available to customers to get them up and running. But if all things fail or if the customer's vehicle is deemed unfit for travel, we will tow them to the closest auto mechanic to have the vehicles repaired appropriately.
