Fort Lauderdale Rehab Center Shares Addiction Insights With Online Community

August 07, 2019

August 07, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Florida-based The Core Centers (TCC) is pleased to announce that they have begun sharing their insight into addiction and recovery through articles published on their website. Given that TCC focuses on helping people take back their lives after negative interactions with drugs and alcohol, they are eager to share their expertise with the people who would most benefit from it. They hope that these articles and posts will help those affected, as well as their friends and families, come to terms with the steps that can be taken to overcome addiction.

For instance, one of their most recent posts discusses detox programs and what people can expect undergoing this experience. "Living with addiction is hard," notes the "What Is Detox?" post. "Days and nights are filled with hopelessness, sadness, and feeling imprisoned by the endless quest to get your next high." Loving someone who has an addiction to drugs or alcohol can be painful too. There is fear and uncertainty of what will happen next, and always wondering if they're okay steals your happiness and peace of mind." Those interested may read the rest of this post by visiting the center's blog on their website.

According to the post, one of the major obstacles that a person suffering from addiction faces is the feeling of isolation that their situation brings on. Sufferers may feel like they are abandoned or even unworthy of help, and this in turn means they feel they have no way to dig themselves out of the hole they are in. As the post states, however, sufferers, "are not alone." Besides the fact that friends and family more often than not want to help, there are always rehab facilities like The Core Centers putting in the effort to help people get their lives back on track. As they say, "Life in the bondage of addiction to drugs or alcohol doesn't have to keep being part of your story." There is always a way out and a way to move forward.

Since the blog was launched only recently, it has yet to build up an extensive library of articles. However, this does not mean that there is a dearth of content. Each post is a sizeable read, and contains a variety of chapters that explore topics that are relevant to the main subject. The What Is Detox article, for example, also discusses how sufferers can find the right treatment center for them and what further treatment options they should consider following their detox. Similarly, the article on "Treatment for Substance Use Disorders" also provides further details on inpatient treatment and aftercare. TCC believes that a comprehensive understanding of the challenges they will have to overcome can help prepare an individual considering (or undergoing) rehab to come to grips with what they have to do. In addition to this, the center hopes their blog will help lessen the stigma associated with seeking help for addiction.

According to their website, The Core Center states that, "We're a small, intimate, Florida-based facility providing long-lasting healing that helps you rebuild your life." They invite new clients to, "Enjoy a warm community and comfortable accommodations plus trips, swimming, and sports." Their facilities feature holistic therapy programs and a staff that boasts over 100 years of cumulative experience in rehabilitation. Furthermore, each resident receives 30 hours of treatment a week. TCC states, "We don't do cookie-cutter. Your stay at Core will include a selection of personalized therapies and programs handpicked to help you overcome your challenges."

They currently hold a review score of 4.3 Stars on the Google review platform. In the 5-star review they posted online, Nick M. says, "The Core Centers is a great place to go to when you're ready to get into recovery. They have a dedicated staff that goes above and beyond for their clients. I highly recommend adding this treatment center to your list of places to consider." In another review, hosted on TCC's website, Carrie M. says, "This was my first time in treatment, and I was scared to death. But The Core Centers made it easy for me to get the help I needed. I am so lucky to have found this place. The staff genuinely cares and I've learned so much about myself and my addiction. I know that if it weren't for the people I've met here and the love I've been shown, I might not be alive today. I'm excited about my future because I know it won't look like my past."

Those who wish to learn more may visit the rehab center's website or drop by their Fort Lauderdale premises. The Core Centers is always willing to welcome those who prefer personalized and focused help in dealing with their addiction. Interested parties may also connect with the center and learn more about their programs by following them on their social media platforms.
