Rudi Dodson, Big Mike Towing's representative, shares some letters sent by their previous customers and other people.

Stephanie Delaney, an NGO volunteer living in Silver Chase, says, "Big Mike's cheap towing services were recommended by two of my friends. So when my car broke down on my way to Kensington, Big Mike was the first company that entered my mind. Instead of towing my vehicle immediately, their tow truck workers just gave my car a jumpstart and my car was ready to go. Other towing companies would have towed my car and charge me for towing. Big Mike Towing charged me a minimal fee for their roadside assistance because that is all that's needed."

Dodson explains, "We don't just tow vehicles right away to make money. Our workers try to find the simplest and cheapest solution that will address customer problems. This is why we offer roadside assistance. But if the vehicle won't start or it is too risky to drive, then we use towing as a last resort to have a vehicle repaired to the nearest shop." Another customer testimony comes from Chester Washington of South Springs. He says, "Big Mike towed my pick-up truck which broke down while driving along Crosstown Expressway. Their tow truck drivers came under 15 minutes to my rescue. They initially attempted to fix the issue but we learned that it's an alternator problem. They towed my vehicle to the nearest auto mechanic and charged me only for the towing as originally quoted. The company is truly praiseworthy for their honesty in billing customers."

In response, Dodson answers, "Big Mike drivers are trained with due diligence in performing their work. They initiate a check-up if a customer's vehicle can be repaired. They evaluate if towing is really needed. The company doesn't charge additional fees for that initiative. It only charges customers for the actual towing that it rendered as agreed upon."

Another customer, Juliette Osborn praised the company for their undiscriminating policies. According to her, "Other tow companies ask for membership cards to avail their services. Many others include hidden charges that appear only in the final bill. I have not experienced anything like that with Big Mike Towing."

In a letter from a traffic enforcer in Downtown Tulsa, Big Mike Towing was commended for their contribution in traffic management. He says, "Congratulations to Big Mike Towing for helping ease traffic in the city. The availability of fast and affordable towing in Tulsa has certainly aided in addressing traffic flow. They help in quickly removing stranded vehicles that obstructs roads and streets. Big Mike should be given due credit for their important contribution in improving the city's traffic system."
