The Network Support Company Ltd (TNSC), based in Farnham, Surrey, is pleased to announce the launch of their new Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) Support Services, catered specifically towards assisting schools and educational institutions. With over 15 years of experience in IT services, TNSC has worked with a host of companies of varying sizes in diverse industries, helping them build on the base of reliable technology and backing them up with a team of skilled professionals.

Having seen countless educational institutions struggle to effectively employ the technology they possess, TNSC states that they have determined how they can meet the challenges that the education sector is presented with. Using this insight, they have tailored a branch of their ICT Support services with the intent of providing the best, most comprehensive experience their clients could ask for, specifically focused on the areas in which they are lacking.

Vicki Watson, a representative of TNSC, says, "We understand just how difficult it is to run an educational institution?and that?s without taking the technological hurdles of the facility into account. Administrators may be aware that there are a number of tools that can help them do their jobs more effectively, but these tools may be insufficient if not utilized correctly. To address this issue, we provide advice and assistance to help them use the tools they have more effectively. If necessary, we'll even suggest alternatives that they may find more suitable for their tasks. Our hope is that this will ease the burden of management that is often pushed onto inexperienced personnel.

TNSC states that they understand the vital role that an ICT support team plays within an institution, as the proper functioning of its electronic systems is of the utmost importance. In an era in which a failing IT system can compromise an entire day's worth of education and work, the company is able to ensure a prompt response and solution to address any problems that may arise.

"We will not only provide you with the best tools, but we will also make sure that you know how to use them and see that they are working properly," asserts Watson. She adds that TNSC's services are designed to cover everything that is ICT-related, ranging from sourcing and installing the right software to maintaining a school's internet connectivity, giving 24/7 support, and providing ICT equipment for schools. In short, she says, "We offer everything you need for complete ICT infrastructure management.

TNSC supplies software packages designed specifically for schools and colleges that are both reliable and suit the education sector's unique requirements. They are easy to use and comprehensible regardless of the user's experience (or lack of it) in handling software of this nature. Additionally, the ICT equipment which they provide takes into consideration various devices that are not normally featured in the commercial sector but play a key role in education, such as interactive whiteboards and projectors.

The company states that they provide an ICT support service that is both reliable and cost-effective, developed according to an institution's unique needs and their budget. They say, "We understand that not every school is the same and work alongside you to make sure we're delivering the best support for yours. We are committed to helping schools get the most out of their ICT Systems, making them familiar with each of the functions they offer."

In addition to ICT Support for Schools, the company offers IT system management alongside cloud and hosting services. They also provide quality equipment and software. Each of these is carried out by a team complying within the ISO 27001 and ISO 9001 as well as the GDPR guidelines. Each member of their staff possesses proven extensive experience in their respective field.
