Exous Bodygear has recently launched their EX-701 Performance Knee Brace on the Amazon marketplace, and it is getting rave reviews. The knee support brace has received more than 50 five star reviews since its recent launch, and it currently has a 98 percent positive review rating on Amazon.

The knee brace features a four-way compression design that is different from other braces. It has four straps to provide secure anchoring across the thigh and lower leg plus an additional two straps that cross over to isolate the patella tendon, providing secure support.

"The design is perfect for those who generally have issues with knee braces," says Exous Bodygear spokesperson M. Kaur. "It provides support that is both secure and comfortable."

The comfort features stem from the four-way strap system, which offers a comfort gap behind the knee, which eliminates common complaints of restrictions when bending, irritation and general poor wearability.

The brace is constructed of 3mm high-grade neoprene to offer heat retaining therapeutic properties in addition to support. It offers double lateral stabilizers which gives coverage for those with weak knees or arthritis, and it perfect for sports that require a degree of lateral stability such as basketball, skiing, and soccer.

It also offers a jacquard lycra lining on the inside to protect the skin and to help eliminate common issues such as those with sweating or irritation. The lining is the same material that is used in undergarments to keep skin irritation free. There is also an optional elastic sleeve that helps to position the knee brace for perfect fitting every time and also eliminates the straps digging or cutting into the skin behind the knee.

The EX-701 Performance knee brace fits knees up to 56 cm or 22 inches when measured 3 inches above the knee and across the thigh. It has a minimum knee circumference of 13 inches.

"I love it," says one Amazon customer. "I have chronic knee issues and have never found a brace that fits securely while still being comfortable. Normally, when I work out or do any sort of sports, my brace just doesn't hold up to the challenge. This one however, works perfectly. I can do so much more and I can barely tell that I have it on."
