Arizona Plumbing Expert Services (APES), a plumbing and air and heating contractor based in Peoria, Arizona, has issued a warning to homeowners to be careful when choosing a plumbing contractor or HVAC company as there are a lot of them in Phoenix that are not licensed or insured. It is important to ensure that they are trustworthy and are really capable and have the experience in performing high level services. APES Plumbing and HVAC is a licensed, insured and bonded company with an outstanding reputation as indicated in the Arizona BBB.

Brian Garrison, owner of APES Plumbing and HVAC, says, ?We serve the Arizona residential and commercial customers valley wide, with a vast range of services including HVAC, plumbing and appliance repair. Integrity, quality and service is the trifecta that makes A.P.E.S. stand apart from its competitors. If you're looking for a contractor that can handle the job day or night, that is licensed, bonded and insured, that cares about their customers, then look no further! Call in A.P.E.S.!?

According to Brian Garrison, whether customers have a minor or major issue with their plumbing, septic system, or sewer line, they are capable of handling it. Whether customers need basic air conditioning or heating maintenance or the installation of a new system, they would be able to take care of it and will even recommend the best possible solution based on the needs of the customer. And if customers have an issue with a refrigerator, microwave or dishwasher, they will send in an expert appliance repair technician capable of resolving the problem.

The company is capable of providing a solution for various plumbing repair Peoria AZ problems. These include slab leaks, sewer repair, water heaters and softeners, fixture installation, Arizona Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ) septic inspections, septic lift stations, pumps, and purified drinking systems.

A slab leak occurs when one of the water lines running under the concrete floor of the home has a leak. Common indications of a slab leak include: the sound of running water when all water is turned off; a hot spot on the floor; cracks in walls or flooring; the smell of mildew or excessive moisture under carpets; and high water bills. Homeowners who notice such signs should contact a reliable plumbing company.

Meanwhile, there are many possible reasons why a sewer has to be repaired, such as tree roots, ground shifting, local utilities, and more. What the experts from Arizona Plumbing Expert Services will do is pinpoint the problem area with state of the art electronic equipment and then discuss the appropriate course of action with the customer. When they perform a sewer repair, what they do is to spot mark the location for outside utilities, excavate the spot, remove the section in which they are repairing, water test the repairs, and then shade and backfill based on code standards.

With regards to septic systems, ADEQ requires an inspection by a certified wastewater technician. An ADEQ inspection is required when a property with a septic tank has a change of ownership. The company will then pull all county records, conduct an on site inspection, take note and record all levels and conditions of the system, collect and get rid of all tank contents, take photos of the tank and area, and fill out a seven-page inspection report that includes a drawing layout of the system. A copy of the report will be given to the customer, including a list of recommended maintenance and repairs.

Aside from plumbing, Arizona Plumbing Expert Services also provides HVAC repair, installation and servicing. They offer a maintenance plan, which includes two visits each year to provide a number of services such as: complete system operational checkup; cleaning of outdoor coil; flushing of condensate drain line; cleaning of dirt and debris from inside the condenser; air flow check; and checking for code compliance.
