

Exous Bodygear Knee Support Review Released On Youtube

July 30, 2015

July 30, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

EXOUS Bodygear has recently released a YouTube video to explain the finer workings of their knee brace. To date, each knee support review that has been received on this brace has been positive, but the company felt that further explanation on how best to use it would be beneficial. This is what the YouTube video aims to achieve.

Brand Manager M Kaur is quoted as saying, "Customers have already noted how beneficial our knee brace is to their various knee problems. However, we feel that it is our duty as product manufacturers to ensure the brace is used properly, thereby providing the maximum levels of support. This is what the YouTube video has been released for, and it has been very well-received so far."

The video has only recently been released, but it has already been seen over 1,400 times. It aims to educate people on what to look for when they are searching for knee support for running or other activities. It also highlights the differences between good and bad knee support. As such, the video is not a promotion for the EXOUS product in particular, but rather an informative and educational video.

Learning how to pick the right type of knee support is vital. If it is not chosen - and used - correctly, there is no point in wearing one at all. The ex-701 performance knee brace is uniquely designed to provide all the necessary support for the various muscles and ligaments in the knee. This is because, unlike most knee braces that uses a generic 3 strap design, the ex-701 uses a unique four way compression support.

"The design of the ex-701 allows the knee to be fully stabilized by anchoring it across the thigh and lower leg," adds M Kaur. "Additionally, it provides snug support to the patella by isolating and tracking it thanks to the two individual cross over straps."

The ex-701 has all the features to be expected in an excellent knee support for running device. This includes the fact that it is non-slip, lightweight and compresses the patella. The video further highlights the importance of these features.

###

For more information about EXOUS Bodygear, contact the company here: EXOUS Bodygear M Kaur +447766727740 admin@exousbodygear.com

EXOUS Bodygear

EXOUS Bodygear is a sports and outdoor brand who produce high quality consumer products in the health and fitness market

Website: <http://www.blog.exousbodygear.com>

Email: admin@exousbodygear.com

Phone: +447766727740

Powered by PressAdvantage.com