Exous Bodygear has recently released its insulated water bottle to the US Market. The bottle has been a number one selling product in UK markets for some time. The insulated stainless steel water bottle has been received with a consistently best-selling rank below 400 in the UK market, and now the company plans to release the bottle into the Amazon US marketplace.

M Kaur of Exous Bodygear recently released a statement about the product and its newest venture. "We're excited to be branching out into the US market. Our stainless steel water bottle has been very well received in the UK and we expect nothing less from the US market."

The stainless steel water bottle offers a number of features. Its insulation enables it to keep refrigerated drinks cold for up to 24 full hours or hot for up to 8 hours. The cap is completely leak-proof, ensuring a completely no-spill experience even when the bottle is turned upside down.

The water bottle is constructed of food grade stainless steel and features double wall construction to keep cold drinks cold and hot drinks hot. The construction also eliminates condensation or sweating, making it much easier to handle.

It also features an integrated straw that can be removed easily when needed, this allows easy one-handed operation and also allows consumers to keep focused on the task at hand. The straw eliminates the need to tilt your head back so anyone who is cycling or driving will find this feature super useful. It also has a 45mm wide mouth design that makes it easy to fill with ice and makes it extra safe to pour hot water into the bottle with less risk of scalding your hands.

UK consumers have been raving about the water bottle since its launch earlier. "I love it," says Monica. "It is so easy to use and I don't have spills like I did with my old plastic water bottle. Every time I would run, I would spill something. Now I don't have that worry."

The bottle is available now in the US Amazon marketplace it comes with both the non-leak flip sports cap and a classic loop cap for hot beverages along with an included high quality carabiner to attach to any outdoor gear ideal for camping and trekking.
