Stephen W. Johnson, Christian bankruptcy attorney in Santa Ana, CA, has announced that his firm will now be providing bankruptcy services to the Central District of California, which will include the areas of Orange County, Riverside County, San Bernardino County, and Los Angeles County.

Mr. Johnson and his legal team are committed to ensuring that his clients receive proper legal counsel and representation for all of their bankruptcy needs.

Bankruptcy changed several years ago, making it more difficult for some consumers to qualify for a Chapter 7, which is considered a fresh start bankruptcy because it essentially eliminates most consumer debt. Knowing whether or not a consumer is qualified to file a Chapter 7 can be difficult without knowing all of the laws pertaining to bankruptcy.

"Bankruptcy can be a frightening and heartbreaking situation for many consumers," stated Johnson. "The goal of my firm is to sit down with anyone who thinks that bankruptcy may be an option for them, and help them to determine the best path for them to take."

Stephen Johnson has years of experience working in bankruptcy law, as well as civil litigation and trials. His firm focuses mainly on bankruptcy today.

"Mr. Johnson and his staff were wonderful," says a recent bankruptcy client. "I had no idea what to expect. I was mortified that I had to even consider bankruptcy but he explained everything to me, and the entire office was very compassionate. They really got me through this frightening time. I'm so glad I found them."

The firm recommends a consultation with a lawyer, where they can speak one on one with consumers and determine whether or not bankruptcy is a good plan. The laws regarding bankruptcy are often confusing and many things must be taken into account before filing, such as income, assets, and the overall ability to pay back debt. Financial experts recommend using a qualified and experienced attorney when considering bankruptcy, simply because of these confusing laws.

Consumers who feel that they may need to file for bankruptcy are urged to contact The Law Office of Stephen Johnson for a consultation.
