Better Lawns & Garden is pleased to share its best tips for keeping a better and healthier lawn throughout the year. While many people struggle to simply maintain a lawn, there are others that would love to have a lush green lawn, but simply don't know the basic steps needed to get started. Fortunately, there are many things that a person can do to attain the lawn of their dreams, starting with seeding their lawn at the right time of the year.

Seeding a lawn needs to be done with the appropriate type of seed, depending on where one lives. Homeowners can check with their local garden shop to determine the type of seed they will need to seed their lawn prior to a seeding project. Better Lawns & Garden also recommends checking the soil to see if it is healthy and applying an herbicide to get rid of lingering weeds before seeding a lawn.

The Better Lawns & Garden team says another important aspect of a healthy lawn is feeding. Many people know they need to feed their lawn, but make the mistake of feeding it only once per year. However, the team at BLG says it is typically best to feed a lawn multiple times a year for best results.

The Better Lawns & Garden experts also remind homeowners not to cut grass too short. While regular mowings are important, cutting grass too short can stunt its growth and even lead to bare patches in a lawn. Regular watering is also important, though overwatering can also be a problem.
