Evan Roberts, the founder and owner of Dependable Homebuyers, a We Buy Houses company based in Williamsburg, has said that investments in real estate are now increasingly profitable in and around the city. He recommends such investments for those looking for diversification, consolidation of retirement portfolios, alternative ventures for passive income and sustained cash flow with strategic management of properties. Roberts says that real estate investments in Williamsburg can provide reliable passive income or onetime return. There can be short or long term objectives. Sustainable revenue can be generated through cash flow by properly managing rental properties. Onetime returns can be secured by flipping houses as well as new developments.

The main reason why real estate investments have been proven to be profitable in and around the city is the inventory of distressed houses. There are innumerable properties in varying conditions that cannot be sold outright in the open market. Ordinary buyers are not looking for distressed properties. They are more interested in homes that are ready to move in. Various houses as well as residential buildings in different states of disrepair have provided a realm of opportunities for investors and real estate professionals. Dependable Homebuyers have cashed in on the opportunities. The investment firm has bought many houses over the last nine years. Many of these properties have been renovated and sold. Some have been turned into rental properties. A few are vacation rentals. The company has the expertise and experience in all facets of residential real estate. There are experts who specialize in short sale as well.

Expertise and experience are the two quintessential elements to ensure profitable real estate investments, says Roberts. He highlights the reasons of failures for those who do not secure a profit through their real estate ventures. Some people have tried their hands at flipping in Williamsburg but without sufficient expertise and have hence failed to reap the rewards. Some investors have explored rental properties but struggled with vacancy and cash flow problems as a result. These are essentials of dealing in real estate. Some investors have wisely chosen to hire property management companies. Some have invested money but roped in experts to flip houses on their behalf. Such strategic moves are necessary to mitigate risks and to maximize the potential profits. Roberts firmly believes that investments in Williamsburg real estate can provide greater returns than bonds or stocks. The investments can vary in magnitude. Getting the right experts for various processes that are integral to these investments will ensure profit and also simplify the execution of the whole venture. Dependable Homebuyers has been buying all kinds of houses and residential buildings for nearly a decade now. The company has an innovative approach to dealing with owners. It makes direct cash offers and buys houses in as few as seven business days. No other firm has such an expedited process. Evan Roberts and his firm is also capable of maximizing the returns for the sellers as there is no third party involved, whether a listing service or a real estate agent.
