August 27, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Glencoe, Ontario based 2Plus Plumbing launched a new blog for homeowners that features practical and timely plumbing tips and advice. The blog focuses on Do It Yourself (DIY) measures that homeowners can take without having to call in a professional.

Tim Lynn of 2Plus Plumbing said, "This blog is not just another sales type blog or review. We want to offer practical tips so people can learn about things that can help them avoid costly repairs. We aim to publish a new post each week so that people can enrich their knowledge." The blog can be read on the 2Plus Plumbing website.

One of the blog's recent posts highlighted three possible reasons why homeowner's ovens might be the cause of electric fuses tripping in the house. When a fuse blows, it can be inconvenient to get to the fuse box and reset it, but better that than allowing the house to burn down. However, the issue is that most homeowners would not know what to do next. Luckily, 2Plus Plumbing has identified a few aspects that homeowners can check so they need not expend funds having the fault investigated.

Lynn notes that many people lack even the basic knowledge to ensure that they ask the right questions of anyone that does maintenance work for them. With their own vast experience in dealing with homeowners in what is possibly the worst situation their home has been in, 2Plus Plumbing knows that dealing with an emergency is stressful. However, Lynn insists that homeowners need to understand how to deal with essential maintenance to prevent it becoming a much bigger repair bill. "Sometimes, a little knowledge can go a long way, but we stress that anyone looking at electricians should ensure that they keep themselves and anyone else or animals in the area safe," continued Lynn.

The company has even posted tips for selecting the best plumber, which is sure to be popular for anyone who comes across their website for the first time. With over 18 years' experience in the industry, the company has all the expertise they need to help panic-stricken homeowners during an emergency. Those looking for plumbing service in Glencoe will be able to catch up on all the useful information the company has recently made available right after they deal with their current emergency or maintenance needs. 2Plus Plumbing provides practical and timely plumbing content and DIY tips so that homeowners can avoid having to pay for costly repairs. Their blog is published each week and will help enrich every visitor's knowledge of plumbing and other home repair issues. In doing so, the company hopes that homeowners will be better prepared to deal with the repair services they use to help them maintain their home. Furthermore, the new blog brings many of the articles the company has published over the years onto a single easy-to-read platform that can be read on any device.

Lynn said, "We really want everyone to enjoy reading our articles and to learn something that will help them take charge of their household. We invite our readers to ask us questions and even suggest topics concerning their own households. We know that, in the current economic climate, many people are trying to figure out what they can do themselves, and we want to be there for them with useful tips and advice."

The company is also active on Twitter, and will be expanding their use of social media to extend their reach and make more people across North America and the world aware of their pragmatic, practical tips. 2Plus chose the blog format due to its widespread popularity, and welcomes feedback and questions from readers looking for help and advice. They hope that it will become a "go to" website for homeowners around the globe to gain knowledge and confidence in dealing with their own maintenance and suppliers.

The website also includes several Plumbing FAQs, or Frequently Asked Questions, which serve to guide even the newest homeowner through some of the most common questions about household issues. Such questions include having to jiggle the toilet handle, whether they can do anything about the smell from the garbage disposal, and many more. For any Plumbing & Heating Glencoe, Ontario questions or concerns, visitors are invited to submit questions to the company through the website.

The new blog from 2Plus Plumbing is freely available to readers around the globe. Interested parties may follow it for educational resources, and contact Tim Lynn directly with any business concerns or homeowner inquiries. The company's contact information can also be found on their website.
