August 23, 2019 -

We Buy Houses company Dependable Homebuyers based in Ocean City, Maryland, has announced that it has joined the real estate social network ActiveRain. The social network is used by real estate professionals based throughout the country. It is the largest professional network for the sector. Evan Roberts, the owner and founder of the real estate investment firm, has said that joining ActiveRain is an integral part of their ongoing campaign to consolidate their presence nationwide and to interact with professionals based in Ocean City and throughout the state of Maryland.

Roberts says that Ocean City is poised for substantial growth in the real estate sector. There has to be a sustained focus on new home construction. The demand and supply balance ensured by the inventory and steadily appreciating home prices should be maintained and that can only happen with more construction of new homes. The company is attempting to forge new associations with professionals in the industry, including independent experts and firms as well as investors. ActiveRain is a highly active professional network with more than four million blog posts. Roberts says that his team wants to contribute to the knowledgebase available on the platform and also intends to learn from the information already published through the network.

Dependable Homebuyers is a We Buy Houses company. It buys houses directly from homeowners who want to sell, even if the residential properties are not in a saleable condition. Over the years, the company has purchased hoarder houses, properties under foreclosure and also homes that were valued at less than the outstanding debt. The company specializes in short sale. It is now also buying land as a part of its diversification. Evan Roberts and his team have already launched a massive information campaign in Ocean City. The campaign is geared towards sellers, buyers and investors as well as those associated with the real estate industry. The campaign uses videos, articles and blog posts, press releases and advisories to educate homeowners and homebuyers. It is the objective of Dependable Homebuyers to simplify real estate transactions. Roberts wants to use the opportunity presented by ActiveRain to learn from others and share valuable information with the members. The network can be explored for real developments and transformations on the ground. Dependable Homebuyers has been one of the most innovative real estate firms in the last ten years. The company has changed the way homeowners sell their houses. Roberts and his team can schedule immediate appointments for site visits and property inspections. They have a practice of presenting cash offers in twenty four hours after the inspection. The purchase offers are nonobligatory and homeowners do not need to spend any money on repairs or even staging. No listing is necessary and Dependable Homebuyers does not require realtors to intermediate or facilitate such sales.

ActiveRain is an ideal platform for real estate professionals with similar or distinct experiences to get together and share their expertise. Dependable Homebuyers is attempting to contribute and learn at the same time to bring about positive transformations in the housing market of Ocean City, Maryland.
