Three-C Body Shop reaffirms its commitment to providing high-quality OEM auto parts to customers in Columbus, Ohio and the surrounding communities. One of the leading auto-repair firms in the Central Ohio area, the specialty body shop delivers a wide range of services that help restore damaged vehicles to perfect running condition as quickly as possible.

Three-C is fully committed to providing customers with the highest quality repair services available while helping to ensure a less stressful process in general. In its goal to get customers' cars back to optimum running condition, Three-C utilizes quality OEM parts, all of which are subject to rigorous testing for compatibility and performance.

With its OEM parts, Three-C guarantees full compatibility in every respect. The company's OEM replacements not only conform to measurement and functional requirements, but are also made of the same material as the original components.

Three-C matches all replacement parts down to the tiniest detail. This focus on total conformance minimizes the possibility of poorly fitting parts, which is especially important in complicated assemblies.

Three-C also places primary importance on safety issues when using OEM parts in its repair work. By making sure that the replacement parts are the same as the factory-issued components, the company minimizes the risk of improper performance, which can put the car's driver and other people at risk of injury.

Three-C's commitment to providing safe and high-quality repair and replacement solutions is most apparent in its company mission. In every aspect of its operations, Three-C strives to make a perceptible improvement in its collision-repair services. From quality control and production to safety and even communication, the company adopts a company-wide approach to ensuring the delivery of the best quality service possible. This approach enables the company to provide value well beyond that which most other body shops can provide.
