Dependable Homebuyers, a Columbia based We Buy Houses company, has been featured on real estate website Investor Carrot. The private real estate investment firm is known for its innovative services and turnkey solutions. It buys houses from owners in and around the city of Columbia. The company was founded around nine years ago and has since grown into a nationwide firm. It has started buying land too. Recognizing the contributions of the company and the expertise of the founder & owner Evan Roberts, Investor Carrot featured an article and has provided him a platform to share his experience with fellow professionals and entrepreneurs in the industry.

Dependable Homebuyers has succeeded in changing status quo in the housing sector in Columbia. For decades, the real estate industry has functioned in the same manner wherein realtors represented sellers and buyers, offline and subsequently online classifieds served as mediums of exposure and the conventional rules of commissions, closing costs and painstaking waits along with uncertainty of getting a closing offer dictates the process and the eventual deal. All that changes when Dependable Homebuyers started buying houses without realtors and listing services. Homeowners have an option of getting a closing offer from a buyer directly and that too in just twenty four hours after an inspection. Evan Roberts says that he and his partners intended to simplify the whole process of selling a house. This was especially significant given the time of their inception. The firm started its journey in the aftermath of the financial crisis when the housing market collapsed throughout the country.

Investor Carrot is among the most popular and respected online platforms for investors. Both amateur and veteran investors use the platform to learn more about the industry. The platform features experts from time to time who share their experiences. There is no lack of tips and strategies on the platform. Evan Roberts is also expected to share his take on the real estate sector in Columbia and beyond. Roberts and his team at Dependable Homebuyers run an information campaign already. This is limited to their official website and some other platforms. Investor Carrot is now an additional platform that shall be used by the company to reach out to more investors, buyers, sellers and entrepreneurs who want to venture into real estate. Here's a recent press release they published.

Dependable Homebuyers has transformed the real estate sector in Columbia. Homeowners have been unable to sell their houses for the longest time if their properties were not in an impeccable condition. Most owners had to invest a lot of money on repairs and renovations before they could list their properties for sale. Real estate agents also insist on such improvements as otherwise convincing a buyer becomes a monumental challenge. Dependable Homebuyers does not require a property to be repaired, renovated, improved or even staged. Normal cleaning and de-cluttering is sufficient. The company buys houses in every location and regardless of condition. It does not charge any commission or service fee. It also pays for the closing cost so sellers can secure maximum return by liquidating their asset.
