Dependable Homebuyers has become one of the most trusted real estate investment firms in Newport News over the last nine years. The founder of the We Buy Houses company, Evan Roberts was invited to a property focused podcast to speak about his experiences and to also provide his expert guidance for sellers and buyers in the city. Evan Roberts appeared on the epodcast network and spoke at great length about his dealings in real estate. He provided priceless information about how to go about selling a house in Newport News. He also had useful tips for buyers so they can find the right kinds of deals.

Speaking about the podcast, Evan Roberts said that he did not imagine being featured on podcasts when he had started the company with his partners. He was content with the interactions he had while recording the podcast. Roberts admits that he was a little unnerved before the podcast was recorded as public speaking is not his forte. He is more comfortable in his role as a real estate expert who is more interested in disrupting the status quo to help homeowners, sellers, buyers and investors. But he did enjoy the experience and is now looking forward to other such exposures that can help him to provide guidance to homeowners, sellers and buyers.

Dependable Homebuyers is a real estate investment firm that buys houses directly from owners. Evan Roberts has a whole team of consultants, property inspectors, researchers, financial and legal experts. His firm is an independent company and does not deal with intermediaries. He has been buying houses in and around Newport News for almost a decade now. Homeowners can consult with Roberts and his team for free and get a cash offer for their houses, usually after just one viewing and inspection. Roberts, his partners and the team at Dependable Homebuyers have disrupted how the real estate sector has been functioning all these decades. He is intent on continuing to do so as his firm rolls out many other services. The podcast was entitled 'How to Sell an Ugly House in Virginia'. The focus was on homeowners who are unable to sell their houses because of aesthetic or structural problems and in many cases both. Not all homeowners are in a position to invest in repairs or renovations. Evan Roberts explained that homeowners need not consider such expenses and can easily sell their houses to his company without even paying the commission that is charged by realtors. The company also pays for the closing cost. Dependable Homebuyers has purchased all types of houses over the years, from hoarder houses to properties under foreclosure. Roberts and his team specialize in short sale too.

Dependable Homebuyers was founded with the sole intention of helping property owners find a buyer quickly and to sell a house in as-is condition. The company has been doing that successfully and is now also buying land in Newport News and throughout the state of Virginia. More of Dependable Homebuyers services can be found here.
