San Antonio based We Buy Houses company, Dependable Homebuyers is among the fastest growing real estate investment firms in Texas. The innovative home buying company has announced that it is appearing on the epodcast network. The firm has been in the news lately for a variety of reasons, primarily for its turnkey solution for homeowners who want to sell their properties in and around the city, but also for its sustained information campaign.

Evan Roberts, the owner of the company, was interviewed for the podcast. The session was principally about educating homeowners trying to sell and those who want to buy. The central topic of discussion was how to sell an ugly house in San Antonio. Roberts has decades of experience in the real estate market. He specializes in buying and selling houses. For nearly a decade, his company has been at the forefront of buying houses. Dependable Homebuyers has bought all types of houses in the last ten years, even when the real estate market was in a dire state following the collapse of the financial market.

The podcast is now live. Roberts has shared valuable advice and discussed various aspects of the housing sector in San Antonio. He shares tips and strategies for sellers and buyers. The podcast is an informative guide for anyone trying to sell a house. It sheds light on different factors that influence the market conditions. From trends to nitty-gritty of real estate deals, Roberts has highlighted many essential elements that can simplify the quest of sellers and buyers.

Dependable Homebuyers has changed the way people sell houses in San Antonio. The company deals with owners directly and thus sellers do not have to look for realtors any more. No third party is involved in the process, not even multiple listing services. Those who have sold their houses to the firm have saved the commission charged by realtors and the closing cost that is unavoidable in every other alternate scenario. The company pays the closing cost. It does not have any commission or service fee. Sellers get the full amount quoted in the purchase offer.

Many distinct attributes of Dependable Homebuyers segregate it from other investors and companies. The firm has purchased all types of homes, including hoarder houses. It buys foreclosed properties, residential buildings and rentals. It has expertise in short sale too. The type of property, its size or location, the exact condition and other crucial factors do not pose any threat to the potential of a sale. The company buys houses in every imaginable condition without sellers having to repair or renovate anything. Evan Roberts says that he and his partners founded the company with the intention to assist sellers who were having a tough time finding a buyer and securing an acceptable closing offer. Over the years, they have bought new and old houses, including distressed properties. The team at Dependable Homebuyers runs an information campaign and routinely issues advisories for sellers and buyers in San Antonio, Texas.
