Bob Bies explains that homeowners who have an old model heating system are likely to have a furnace. The company provides furnace repair, installation and check up services. Their team of professionally trained HVAC technicians have a broad range of experience, repairing and installing thousands of furnaces for many years.

With the approach of the fall season, furnaces will be relied on more and more for keeping the family warm. That is why Furnace Repair Edmonton offers 24/7 repair services to ensure that people don't have to suffer the inconvenience of having a non-functioning heating system for a long time.

Aside from the furnace services, the company also offers boiler service and replacement. As the colder months approach, Bob Bies advises homeowners and property owners to have their boilers checked to make sure that their energy bills will be as low as possible and that the boiler is not going to cause any ill effects on their health. The check up to be done by the company will include: checking to make sure that the boiler is operating at the appropriate gas pressure; testing of the flue to ensure that the boiler emissions are safe; ensuring that the controls are working properly; and inspecting for leaks and corrosion.

Furnace Repair Edmonton also provides air conditioning repair and installation in its various service areas. Here, they ensure that all the products that they use are environmentally safe, cost-efficient and safe.

They also offer water heater services, which would become more in demand as the temperatures become colder. Water heaters are known to last only for a number of years and to occasionally require repairs. The plumbers from Furnace Repair Edmonton are well-trained and knowledgeable about all types of water heaters and can help the homeowners or property owners decide on whether to have the unit repaired or replaced.

And finally, Furnace Repair Edmonton plumbers offer full plumbing services. They offer fair and up-front pricing so that customers will know exactly what they will be charged before the plumbers begin the work. The company's plumbers are all professionals who have many years of experience with regards to plumbing repair, installation, or replacement. Common plumbing problems they can solve include faulty water heaters, clogged drains, running toilets, low water pressure, and leaking faucets.

The problem is that plumbing issues are an inconvenience. That is why the company has plumbers available 24/7 to respond as soon as possible to a distress call from a customer. When customers book an appointment, they can be sure that the plumbers will arrive on time, in uniform, and with the proper tools and knowledge to solve the issue properly.
