September 17, 2019 -
Vaughan, Ontario based Mazzeo Law Barristers & Solicitors has announced that their wide range of legal services includes real estate and property distribution. The firm also highlights that they have years of experience in handling legal cases surrounding family issues, which often encompasses Family Law, Real Estate Law, and/or Will and Estate Law.

?We are knowledgeable in both Divorce Law and Real Estate Law, and our lawyers are experienced in resolving all types of property issues under Family Law. Our team is capable of providing comprehensive legal guidance even to the most complex areas of property division, division of assets, and property distribution,? says Peter Mazzeo, Founding Partner at Mazzeo Law Barristers & Solicitors. He also points out that their mission is to help ex-couples settle issues and disputes when it comes to property distribution and make the taxing process easier for all the parties involved.

In general, the Family Law Act states that all properties acquired during the course of marriage by either party, with some exceptions, is considered to be the property of both spouses, notwithstanding legal titles. This means that, when a marriage falls apart, the law requires that both spouses are to receive an even distribution of their total combined assets. As noted on the firm?s website, this in turn means that the services of a professional separation lawyer are crucial when it comes to reaching a fair settlement and distribution of a property if a marriage breaks down. The role of a separation lawyer is to legally identify the correct division of assets and property division under the concepts of net family property, equalization, and equalization payment.

Family Law requires both spouses to identify their net family property by totaling the value of all their acquired assets, whether solely or jointly, and deducting all liabilities by both parties that were in existence based on a set valuation date. Once the net family property is determined for each spouse, the values are then compared and equalized, so each party leaves the marriage with an equal amount of assets.

In addition to real estate and property distribution, the firm also highlights their experience in helping couples secure their rights in their relationship by creating domestic contracts to ensure that the interests of both parties are protected even before marriage. Mazzeo asserts that hiring a domestic contracts lawyer can help couples identify their needs and come to an agreement that will benefit both parties in the long run. He also states that having a qualified domestic contracts lawyer can be an invaluable solution to protect each of the spouse?s financial health should they decide to terminate their marriage in the future.

Furthermore, Mazzeo explains that the lawyers at Mazzeo Law Barristers & Solicitors have already helped hundreds of families in the greater Ontario area in the division of property, division of assets, and property distribution. They are considered one of the most trusted law firms in the area, based on the positive reviews and recommendations they have received from many of their previous clients. The firm holds an average client rating of 4.6/5.0 on the Google review platform.

One of their grateful clients says, "Paul and the team at Mazzeo Law have made this difficult time for myself and my family a smoother process. I am especially grateful for how available Paul and his staff were to me, especially when emergencies came up. It was a long battle, but Paul made it as best as possible. He made it easy and comfortable for me to understand my rights. Paul and his staff were always patient when answering my questions and addressing my concerns. Never once did I feel less than or that my thoughts and questions were deficient. I appreciated this the most. Thanks for the great service and compassion that you and your staff have shown me and my family throughout this difficult time and process."
