Advisory Issued: Greater Toronto Real Estate Rose Over 9% Year On Year

September 11, 2019

September 11, 2019 -
Greater Toronto, Ontario based RLP Maximum recently issued an advisory that real estate sales in the Greater Toronto area are showing a net year on year gain of over 9%. This puts sellers in the driving seat to gain extra curb appeal and selling power, if they have a property for sale, to utilise the unique skills of the company?s real estate brokerage services.

The company stated that they have made a report entitled ?5 Tips to Higher Sales Prices,? which is freely available to all those interested in achieving the maximum return for their house sale?with effective, and yet inexpensive, ways to bring up the value of their home before they put up a For Sale sign. The company also provides news services for any type of home, from apartments and condominiums through to semi-detached and luxury estates. They also provide news for vacant land and commercial properties as well.

Homeowners who want to sell their properties face the dilemma of whether they should sell it themselves or seek a professional service from an agent. Sometimes, they sign with a broker only to find that their broker is too small and cannot compete well with large brokerages. In this instance, they may want to consider approaching an agent who can access and navigate the MLS.

The MLS, or Multiple Listing Service, allows groups of real estate agents to view each other?s listings online?a 21st century implementation of real estate brokers gathering to share news and listings of available properties they had come across. Homeowners looking to sell will find that an MLS listing with RLP Maximum gives them a considerably higher number of buyer opportunities. Since the system allows competing brokers to work together toward a common goal of helping buyers find their desired properties and helping sellers sell their properties, MLS listings are probably the best choice for sellers, should they want to reach as many buyers as possible in a timely fashion.

Royal LePage Maximum Realty Brokerage, commonly known as RLP Maximum, has been helping Canadians find their very own dream home in their preferred community for over 100 years. As the agency understands people seeking a home want more than just a property, they can more effectively help their clients navigate the Canadian real estate market. This is a crucial advantage to have, given that buying a home is one of the biggest financial decisions most people will ever make.

Abhi D'Orrico gave them 5 Stars in their Google review, saying, ?Great office vibe, great staff, including all home buying services. Your one stop shop for your realty needs.? The company invites all existing and new customers alike to leave their own reviews on the Google platform, or on their Facebook page.

Those looking for a real estate broker in the Greater Toronto area will appreciate that the company is open 7 days a week, Monday to Friday from 9am to 9pm and on weekends from 10am to 6pm. Their website has been built from the ground up to function equally well across any platform, from desktops to smartphones. The website also allows visitors to call the office directly, should they so wish.

Furthermore, visitors can also use the website?s online form to ask a specific question, which is often more convenient when the office is closed. The website also holds the answers to many frequently asked questions that people have about renting, buying, or selling their properties.

The company updates their MLS listing daily, so it is probably worth bookmarking their website for future reference. Selling a house is one of the biggest and most important decisions that anyone may ever take, so getting an agency?s full attention and expert knowledge can make all the difference.

For more information, contact the agency directly through their website, or drop into their office in Woodbridge Ontario. RLP Maximum is also active on a variety of social media platforms, including Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest, and Instagram.
