The company states that they are able to handle a variety of emergency tree-related situations, ranging from old, worn out trees on the verge of collapse, to branches pressing on power lines following a violent storm, and so on. In any emergency, however, the company advises that, "Non-emergency response personnel should stay away from the tree or trees in question. If a tree is not where it's supposed to be, or not as healthy as it should be, there may be hidden dangers that won't present themselves until it is too late. We caution that you keep your distance and wait for us to deal with the issue."

Joels adds, "We're aware that homeowners and businesses are often caught unawares when something goes wrong with the trees on their properties. For this reason, we advise that you keep our contact details on hand so we're always only a phone call away. They state that the company's tree service and removal teams have a wealth of experience in handling every kind of tree imaginable, and customers should not hesitate to call them if they believe there is a serious problem with their trees.

Furthermore, the company warns their community not to underestimate the danger posed by unstable trees. "Even a slender looking tree is still made of wood, and is heavier the taller it gets," says Joels. "A falling tree can inflict serious damage on a home or a car, to say nothing of the bodily harm it could cause if it struck a person. If you suspect something is wrong, take yourself and your loved ones out to a safe distance as soon as possible."

"Even if you're not sure that something is wrong with your trees, you have nothing to lose by having us check it out," adds Joels. "Remember, we also provide free estimates, so you have no fees to concern yourself with should it turn out to be a false alarm. In all cases, it's better to be safe than sorry, so we prefer to be on hand to look over any potential problems in order to preserve the safety of our customers, their loved ones, and their homes." In addition to emergency tree response, Joels Pro Tree Service provides tree removal, pruning and trimming, and plant health care services. The years they have spent working in and with the communities in Ohio gives them a great deal of experience to pull from when they answer a customer's call for help. This also means that the company is a full-service tree care contractor with the equipment to manage any challenging arbor related issue their customers may have. "If it turns out your call was a false alarm and your tree just needed some other sort of service, there's no need to worry," reassures Joels. "We'll be pleased to examine it and offer our professional recommendation, whereupon you can decide whether or not you want us to address the situation at that time."

In addition to being accredited by the Better Business Bureau (BBB), the company holds a perfect 5/5 Star rating on both the Google and Yelp review platforms. Pleased customers have also left highly positive reviews of the company's services.

David W. said, "Joels Pro Tree Service was excellent to work with! Very knowledgeable, and they were actually able to start earlier than expected. Would recommend and would use again." Similarly, Mackenzie M. said, "Joels Pro Tree Service came out and cut two big dead trees in our front yard which were close to my house and power lines. They did a great job and made sure to clean up after themselves. They even came to my house later that day to talk to me to make sure everything met my expectations, which they were. Would recommend to anyone!"
