ATLANTA, GA - September 16, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Arrowhead Clinic, a chiropractic clinic in Atlanta, Georgia, has announced that they have recently released a blog post on how babies benefit from chiropractic care. The article is titled, "How Babies and Infants Can Benefit From Chiropractic Care." They point out that not only is chiropractic care safe for babies but it can actually help them in their growth. It is quite common for babies to have some health problems while they are growing, and a chiropractor can help alleviate those conditions.

Johnny Brown, a spokesperson for Arrowhead Clinic, says, "Babies experience musculoskeletal pain from day-to-day bumps, falls, and postural strain, and they can suffer various injuries to the neck, ankles, knees, back, and shoulders. These are injuries that adults also experience and visit their chiropractor to treat."

He continues, "Chiropractors tailor their treatment for kids to take into consideration their age, developmental stage, and size. Treatment plans typically include soft tissue therapy, gentle joint mobilization, or manipulations."

The article describes the various ways that babies can benefit from chiropractic care. These include the fact that chiropractic care can boost recovery after birth; enhance the immune system; decrease colic pain; reduce fussiness; support physical development; and help with ear infections.

A chiropractor can perform gentle manipulations in certain areas of the baby's body to help ease tension and strain after birth. Any nerve problems that can arise from natural birth or a C-section can also be corrected. A chiropractor can also help boost the baby's immune system through the correction of spine misalignment. This is because such a misalignment can irritate the nerve pathways, affecting the immune system. Research has shown that a few spinal adjustments can make the body better in releasing disease-fighting cells.

A chiropractor can also reduce colic symptoms experienced by babies through the correction of any misalignments to the spine. And as the baby grows, secondary curves of the spine form like the neck curvature and the lower back curvature. Without proper alignment, these spinal curvatures might fail to develop properly and this could slow down the baby's physical development.

Several studies have also shown that chiropractic treatment can help reduce fussiness and irritability in babies. This is because the fussiness could be caused by mechanical restrictions in the baby's spine.

It is also possible that the tube that drains the middle ear from excess fluids can become blocked because of colds, allergies, or multiple sinus infections. This can result into an ear infection. By applying gentle manipulations on the vertebrae of the upper neck, the tube can be dilated to help drain the middle ear. It is also important to consult a pediatrician because the infection might need to be treated with antibiotics.

Arrowhead Clinic offers other helpful content just like the above-mentioned article on its blog. In a previous blog post, the clinic posted an article on the 6 reasons for a healthy lifestyle.

Meanwhile, people who have experienced the chiropractic care provided at the Arrowhead clinic have mostly positive things to say about it. In fact, the overall rating of the clinic on Google is a perfect 5 stars. In one of the latest reviews, Tiffany A. said, ?I love this place and the people there. Very pleasant environment. Always can expect an honest answer to any question. They make you feel like you are part of the Arrowhead team. Dr Turner and her staff is the best. Will always come back.?

In another five star review, Robbie B. said, ?When you think of heaven on earth that describes Arrowhead Clinic on Cascade Road! The staff is very professional and sweet! I love Doctor Turner and have seen amazing results since coming. I also love it here because at times when I didn't have a babysitter I was able to bring my baby with me and the staff were well equipped to deal with her! I highly recommend this place.?
