October 22, 2019 -
Cincinnati, Ohio based IM Consultant Services is pleased to share the benefits that Search Engine Optimization (SEO) has to offer local businesses in the Louisville area. They are one of the most well-established marketing companies in the area, having served the Louisville community for several years and helping business owners find success. They are a leading company when it comes to Louisville SEO. Their expertise and thorough knowledge of the most effective marketing techniques allows them to ensure a significant improvement in a company's ability to attract new customers.

"If you are a business owner, you should already know how important it is to have a strong online presence," states Mike Marko, CEO of IM Consultant Services and expert in the field of SEO. He continues, "The same applies whether you have just opened a business, or if it is already well-established. If you are not advertising yourself on the internet and making your business easily accessible for your clients, your opportunities to grow and succeed will be limited."

As noted by the company, SEO plays a significant role in a business' growth opportunities, rivaling the importance of other techniques in attracting new customers. They explain that most companies focus their efforts on traditional marketing strategies, which is a common mistake that can lead a company to failure. While these strategies were effective in the past, they have since been rendered obsolete. They state that the driver behind this evolution is the expanding convenience of the internet and the reliability of its results when it comes to online searches for businesses' references.

Marko says, "Today, most individuals do an online search for businesses in the area before deciding which one to visit. They will search for 'Plumbers in Louisville,' or something similar, and choose one of the top results. If your business does not appear as one of the first five results, you will have lost 50% of your prospective customers. You will find that this number increases exponentially, the lower your business ranks. If it does not even appear for a basic search like this, you will miss an immeasurable number of prospective customers."

As the company states, the most popular search engine, which all businesses should be targeting with their SEO, is Google, with 2 trillion searches per day. They comment that the purpose of SEO should be to determine the keywords that will be the most effective in helping a business have a higher rank in Google searches. Ideally, they would rank among the first five results for a handful of keywords, while being within the first page for several others.

The importance of an influential online presence, as noted by the Louisville SEO expert, lies in the raw number of searches that take place every minute. Marko affirms, "The chances are that your prospective customers are currently searching for a company capable of fulfilling their needs. We can work alongside you to help you determine the target audience that you want to reach?and the most effective way to reach them. Our expertise allows us to guarantee successful results through our SEO services, within the shortest time frame possible."

As the company notes, the primary goal of a successful SEO service is to determine the most effective keywords. Local businesses will want to target simple keywords that describe the industry of their company and their location. An example of this is the keyword 'Louisville Dentist,' which is what prospective customers will be using on their Google searches. For businesses with services that provide a wider reach, this is especially challenging, as they want to use broader terms, though obtaining results with these is consequently more challenging.

IM Consultant Services takes pride in working alongside their clients to determine their goals and devise a plan accordingly, taking on challenges regardless of how difficult they may seem. The services provided by the company include Business Consulting, Branding, Social Media Marketing, SEM, Online Marketing Funnels, Website Design, and so on.
