LowCountry Home Magazine, a Home Building and Online Design Magazine, releases a checklist on their website to help readers find the right remodeler.

LowCountry Home is a premier building and construction magazine that reaches out to customers looking for home building and home improvement ideas in Beaufort County, S.C. They feature a lot of local businesses from professional services, roofing, landscaping, plumbing, interior design, and so much more.

In one of their feature articles, they have shared a checklist to help homeowners who are looking for an excellent, dependable remodeler.

To check the company?s credibility, the homeowner may contact their local home builders? association and check if the company is a member there. They may also inquire how long the builder has been in the business. It usually takes three to five years to establish a financially sound business. By then, they should have a permanent business location and a good reputation with local banks and suppliers. You can also get feedback from their previous customers.

It is equally important to make sure the remodeler has sufficient workers compensation and general liability insurance. If not, the homeowner may be liable for any construction-related accidents on their premises. The remodeler should provide the homeowner with a complete and clearly written contract. The contract will benefit both parties. For newly-built homes, the builder should give a copy of the home warranty and homeowner manual as well.

Homeowners must look for a remodeler that they can easily communicate with. They will be in close contact with each other throughout the construction process and afterward as the homeowners live in their new home.

Another good tip is to ask if the homeowners can see the remodeler?s work, both completed and in progress. This way they can check for quality of workmanship and materials.

Customers should look out for unusually low-priced bids. If the remodeler is unable to pay for the materials and labor as the project proceeds, this may indicate a potential problem.

LowCountry Home a Leading Media Company in Bluffton SC added a couple of recommended local remodelers for their readers:
