Delray Florida Addiction Services Admissions Office Opens

September 23, 2019

September 23, 2019 -

The Legacy Healing Center - Delray Admissions Office has recently opened in Delray Beach, Florida. This is a brand new admissions office for the Legacy Healing Center. The center is designed to help people who are suffering from drug or alcohol addiction and the new admissions office is ready to accept people who want to meet with someone face to face before being admitted into one of the addiction rehab centers of the Legacy Healing Center.

Legacy Healing Center takes a holistic healing approach to help people addicted to drugs or alcohol. Through the holistic approach, patients are not just able to deal with their addiction but are also able to thrive in life while being free from toxic substances and the lifestyle issues that come with them.

Michael DePasquale, Vice President of Business Development at Legacy Healing Center, says, ?Recovery from addiction is only the beginning of the journey to a better life. Freedom is learning to live, so you?re ?off the hook?, and you never have to pick up again.?

The treatment provided is designed to help addicted people to stop their compulsion to seek and use drugs. The treatment can be provided in a variety of settings and in many different forms, and for various lengths of time. The short and one-time treatment is usually not enough for a particular individual because drug addiction is a chronic disease where relapse is common.

Drug rehabilitation or drug rehab is provided in a residential facility that focuses on addiction treatment. Addiction is considered to be a clinical disease of the brain, and addiction to substances like alcohol, prescription drugs or street drugs, can damage a person?s health and well-being, as well as their psychiatric, psychological and emotional states.

A drug rehab center is necessary to break the cycle of addiction. The problem is that it is so easy to fall back into addiction. It is, therefore, necessary for patients to distance themselves from the addiction.

Studies were conducted to determine the effectiveness of drug rehab treatment in Delray Beach, Florida. Data from the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment?s Residential Women and Children/Pregnant and Postpartum Women Cross-Site Study and two other recent national research findings were used in the studies. Results indicated that there were strong correlations between length of stay in residential treatment and the abstinence rate after treatment. Most of the patients who were found to have successfully completed treatment had a length of stay of six months or more.

There are two main types of drug rehab treatment: outpatient and inpatient. Inpatient programs are also known as residential programs where patients are required to remain on-site during the duration of the treatment. The patients live in a specialized facility where they receive around-the-clock care and supervision. Inpatient treatment is suitable for those who are battling substantial drug dependence, those who also have mental health or medical problems, those who use more than one type of mind-altering drug or substance, those who don?t have a stable or supportive environment at home, and those who have already gone through a drug rehab program.

The first step in drug rehab treatment is a physician?s assessment of the patient?s physical and behavioral symptoms. As a result of the assessment, the physician may refer the patient to a detox program, which may be medication-assisted.

The length of rehab treatment will depend on the individual patient. While brief treatment that includes detox, therapy, and supportive care may work for certain people, the treatment of substance abuse disorders is usually a complex process that has to be continued for a number of years. As indicated above, longer stays in rehab usually lead to fewer relapse rates.

Meanwhile, in most cases, insurance will cover drug rehab because it usually involves the treatment of a medical disease. However, there are a number of variables to take into account before it can be concluded that insurance will indeed cover rehab.

Legacy Healing Center is a comprehensive behavioral health and addiction treatment provider that uses an individualized patient-centered approach intended to establish a stable support network and build hope to allow the patient to achieve long-term healing and better health.

Those who are interested in treatment for addiction in Delray Beach, Florida, may want to visit the website of the Legacy Healing Center or contact them on the phone or through email.

The Legacy Healing Center - Delray Admissions Office has recently opened in Delray Beach, Florida. This is a brand new admissions office for the Legacy Healing Center. The center is designed to help people who are suffering from drug or alcohol addiction and the new admissions office is ready to accept people who want to meet with someone face to face before being admitted into one of the addiction rehab centers of the Legacy Healing Center.

Legacy Healing Center takes a holistic healing approach to help people addicted to drugs or alcohol. Through the holistic approach, patients are not just able to deal with their addiction but are also able to thrive in life while being free from toxic substances and the lifestyle issues that come with them.

Michael DePasquale, Vice President of Business Development at Legacy Healing Center, says, ?Recovery from addiction is only the beginning of the journey to a better life. Freedom is learning to live, so you?re ?off the hook?, and you never have to pick up again.?

The treatment provided is designed to help addicted people to stop their compulsion to seek and use drugs. The treatment can be provided in a variety of settings and in many different forms, and for various lengths of time. The short and one-time treatment is usually not enough for a particular individual because drug addiction is a chronic disease where relapse is common.

Drug rehabilitation or drug rehab is provided in a residential facility that focuses on addiction treatment. Addiction is considered to be a clinical disease of the brain, and addiction to substances like alcohol, prescription drugs or street drugs, can damage a person?s health and well-being, as well as their psychiatric, psychological and emotional states.

A drug rehab center is necessary to break the cycle of addiction. The problem is that it is so easy to fall back into addiction. It is, therefore, necessary for patients to distance themselves from the addiction.

Studies were conducted to determine the effectiveness of drug rehab treatment in Delray Beach, Florida. Data from the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment?s Residential Women and Children/Pregnant and Postpartum Women Cross-Site Study and two other recent national research findings were used in the studies. Results indicated that there were strong correlations between length of stay in residential treatment and the abstinence rate after treatment. Most of the patients who were found to have successfully completed treatment had a length of stay of six months or more.

There are two main types of drug rehab treatment: outpatient and inpatient. Inpatient programs are also known as residential programs where patients are required to remain on-site during the duration of the treatment. The patients live in a specialized facility where they receive around-the-clock care and supervision. Inpatient treatment is suitable for those who are battling substantial drug dependence, those who also have mental health or medical problems, those who use more than one type of mind-altering drug or substance, those who don?t have a stable or supportive environment at home, and those who have already gone through a drug rehab program.

The first step in drug rehab treatment is a physician?s assessment of the patient?s physical and behavioral symptoms. As a result of the assessment, the physician may refer the patient to a detox program, which may be medication-assisted.

The length of rehab treatment will depend on the individual patient. While brief treatment that includes detox, therapy, and supportive care may work for certain people, the treatment of substance abuse disorders is usually a complex process that has to be continued for a number of years. As indicated above, longer stays in rehab usually lead to fewer relapse rates.

Meanwhile, in most cases, insurance will cover drug rehab because it usually involves the treatment of a medical disease. However, there are a number of variables to take into account before it can be concluded that insurance will indeed cover rehab.

Legacy Healing Center is a comprehensive behavioral health and addiction treatment provider that uses an individualized patient-centered approach intended to establish a stable support network and build hope to allow the patient to achieve long-term healing and better health.

Those who are interested in treatment for addiction in Delray Beach, Florida, may want to visit the website of the Legacy Healing Center or contact them on the phone or through email.
###
For more information about Legacy Healing Center - Alcohol & Drug Rehab Delray Beach, contact the company here:Legacy Healing Center - Alcohol & Drug Rehab Delray BeachTravis Benfaida(954) 420-7414info@legacyhealing.com1690 South Congress Ave Suite 202 ADelray Beach, FL 33445

Legacy Healing Center - Alcohol & Drug Rehab Delray Beach

Legacy Healing Center - Alcohol & Drug Rehab Delray Beach is the #1 drug & alcohol detox & rehab center serving Delray Beach. We help people who are wanting to live free from addiction. Drugs, Alcohol, Prescription Drugs. ?Rehab ?Rehab ?Rehab

Website: https://www.legacyhealing.com/delray-beach/

Email: info@legacyhealing.com

Phone: (954) 420-7414

