The Plastic Surgeon Miami, a cosmetic surgery clinic in Miramar, Florida, has announced that they have published an article that explains the benefits of plastic surgery for teenagers. The article points out that plastic surgery is becoming a growing trend with teenagers. Teenagers are still young and don't have wrinkles or other signs of aging, so it might be a puzzle why they would want to change a part of their body. The answer is that some teenagers get bullied for their looks while some have poor self-image, possibly as a result of good-looking celebrities that they see on television or on print ads.

Dr. Ramiro Morales from The Plastic Surgeon Miami explains, "Teens are seeking help to alter their physical features. Whether they want to alter their face through rhinoplasty, or are seeking breast enhancement, this can totally change their lives forever."

Dr. Morales continues, "However, what they do not realize is that they are making themselves to be someone that they could not have become by nature. In fact, most of the time their bodies have not fully matured enough to be able to handle any type of cosmetic surgery. This is often because they are still growing and may not finish developing until they are 18 years of age."

Nevertheless, in many cases, cosmetic surgery may be very beneficial for teenagers. For instance, those who have a deviated septum may benefit from septoplasty, allowing them to breathe more easily. Another example is a teenager with a crooked nose, either naturally or as a result of an injury. Rhinoplasty can be used to help straighten the nose and provide a more natural and aesthetic appearance.

Another important example is breast enhancement. This procedure can be helpful for teenage women who either did not develop breasts or have developed very small breasts. Young women are often teased because of their small breasts, making them think they are inadequate and resulting into poor self-esteem. This is where breast enhancement can be beneficial for teens. Thus, while plastic surgery is considered by many people to be dangerous and not needed by teenagers, it can be helpful for them in certain situations.

The plastic surgeon Miami clinic offers various kinds of cosmetic surgery procedures. These include breast augmentation, breast reduction, breast lift, abdominoplasty, liposuction, face lift, eyelid surgery, and botox. Breast augmentation can offer various benefits, such as: increasing the size of the breasts; lifting of the breasts; correction of the shape of the breasts; fixing of hanging breast; making the sizes of both breasts equal; and correction of the reduced breast size after pregnancy or major weight loss.

Breast reduction is often requested by women who have disproportionately huge breasts. Men with unusually large breasts may also request for the procedure sometimes.

The breast lift procedure involves tightening of the areola and nearby tissues within the breast and removing excess skin. This results in a raised and firm breast with a well rounded shape and a younger look.

Abdominoplasty involves removing excess skin and fat within the abdomen and surrounding areas. It may also involve restoring separated or weakened muscles. The result would be a flatter abdomen with a firm contour.

Liposuction is used to remove pockets of fat from almost all parts of the body. The fat can be removed the stomach area, upper arms, thighs, buttocks, cheek, neck, chin, knees, and back.

Dr. Morales earned his medical degree from the University of South Florida College of Medicine. After that, he finished his general and plastic surgery residencies at the University of Illinois at Chicago. Later on, he returned to Florida to become vice chief of surgery at Memorial Hospital West and to found his own private practice. He has developed a reputation of focusing on the well-being of his patients, providing personalized and reliable services.
