July 30, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The Carlos Acosta Agency in Belmont, California has recently announced the launch of a new suite of educational services for Americans. The educational webinar will revolve around when and how to apply for Social Security benefits. The service uses mathematical software to show individuals how to maximize their lifetime benefit amount.

A recent report by CNN suggests that more than 50 million Americans receive Social Security checks every month, although few of them know just how the benefit program works. Most people are unaware of even the most basic function of the Social Security benefit system. According to the report, nearly 70 percent of people who were surveyed failed to answer most questions about Social Security benefits correctly. Many had no idea of the age for receiving Social Security and even fewer knew about the rules or guidelines regarding disability payments. This suggests that many Americans may not be fully utilizing the benefits that Social Security has to offer.

"Most people just don't know how to navigate the system or what to expect when they start filing for Social Security claims," says an attorney in Nashville who specializes in Social Security disability claims. "It can be frustrating to say the least."

The Carlos Acosta Agency hopes to educate Americans on the system, how it works, and when it should be utilized. "We can help people to decide when and how they should go about Collecting individual, spousal, divorcee, survivor, parent, and child benefits from Social Security," he said in a recent statement.

The webinar will provide analysis, and suggest which benefits could be claimed and when. "Thousands of dollars could be at stake when people try to negotiate Social Security's complex rules," states Acosta.
