Aviation Business Consultants Intl. (ABCI), an agency based in Salt Lake City, Utah, has published a new article discussing the importance of Reputation Management and Digital Marketing. ABCI is one of the most sought after marketing agencies in the US, widely known despite their specialization in the Aviation industry.

The article specifically explores the importance of Aviation Reputation Management, outlining some of the risks that companies are vulnerable to when unprotected by a manager. The purpose of their article is to raise awareness of the impact that negative comments can have on a businesses' success, as it heavily influences the way new customers view the company.

Paula Williams, a spokesperson of ABCI, states, "Many people overlook this, but the truth is that it is very significant. If your prospective customers search for your company online and they find controversial comments and mostly negative feedback, the chances are that you will lose those customers. They will migrate to another company whose reputation appears more positive. Over time, this could have a significant impact on your company's ability to attract new customers, and it could ultimately make your company go out of business."

Reputation Management is a field that has become more important over the past few years, as more companies rely on online searches to attract new customers. While this is one of the most effective online strategies, this also means that they are subject to bad comments, and what their clients say about them on review websites. One bad comment can be enough to significantly affect a company's online reputation, depending on the number of reviews that they have received in the past.

"It does not matter if the negative review you receive is legitimate or not, it will still hurt your business," notes Williams. "It could have been written by a former employee who is unhappy with your company, a customer who mistook your company's identity, or something else entirely out of your control. For that matter, it could have been a competitor trying to bring your company down?and the worst part is that they would succeed. For these reasons, it is necessary to have a contingency plan to suppress such illegitimate reviews, and it is the only way to ensure your business' integrity."

Through their Reputation Management services, ABCI offers a software platform that allows their clients to stay vigilant for negative reviews, manage them, and react accordingly. For a business, this means handling the illegitimate reviews, whose only intent is to harm the company, while highlighting positive experiences that their customers have shared in the past. Depending on the service chosen, it may also include an Aviation reputation management worksheet, which describes and outlines some of the most common causes for negative reviews, and offers guidance on responding to such events.

Aside from these services, the company also has a free sheet with tips for business owners, advising them on the various aspects of their image that they should handle carefully. One of the topics discussed, for instance, concerns how they should respond when presented with an illegitimate review. ABCI outlines the steps companies may follow to dispute these claims and clear their reputation.

ABCI is one of the most distinguished Reputation Management companies in the US, standing out above their peers due to their commitment towards helping their clients. Their excellence is attested by the positive comments that they receive online, and they maintain a perfect review rating of 5/5 Stars on the Google platform.

One of their most recent success stories narrates the case of Brad MacAllister, who states, "Paula is an incisive speaker who demonstrates proficient knowledge in both the aviation business and electronic marketing. She is engaging, articulate, and, most importantly, she is genuine. I look forward to working with Paula in the future and continuing to learn from her how to best utilize the time and effort I put into my social media initiatives."
