Indianapolis, IN. ? An Indianapolis crystal awards company, Bardach Awards provided the public with a description of the different kinds of crystal awards this month. Bardach Awards is proud to supply several different crystal award options for their clients.

The corporate awards store in Indianapolis describes optical crystal awards, one of the most popular types of awards. According to Bardach Awards, optical crystal awards are comprised of the highest quality crystal, giving these awards unmatched brilliance and clarity. They are often laser-etched with a company?s logo and award title. They can also be etched with intricate designs including multiple facets and modern angles.

Bardach Awards also describes the properties of jade crystal awards and how they compare to optical crystal. Unlike optical crystal, jade crystal is a pristine crystal with a jade hue. These awards are a beautiful addition to any awards collection. As described by Bardach, ?Jade crystal is a great alternative from a clear-cut optical crystal because its color is so dramatic.?

Another crystal Bardach Awards describes is lead crystal. Lead crystal is clear like optical crystal but is usually cut with more intricate designs. According to Bardach, lead awards ?are destined to become cherished heirlooms,?? because they ?reflect a rainbow of color and light, making each one truly a work of art.?

The final type of crystal is clear crystal. According to Bardach Awards, clear crystal is arguably the most basic type of crystal supplied at an awards company. It is cut into a flat piece and then shaped as a rectangle or square. While clear crystal can be designed with subtle curves, it is typically not cut with intricate designs. However, clear crystal awards are very popular for corporate awards because of their versatility. They can be colored in blue or black and set in a wide variety of bases.
