The company's doors were formally opened once again last August 25, 2019. The seasoned towing company is in for a complete transformation with cutting edge towing technology, better customer service and the launching of a new website.

The company has revamped itself by replacing some of its old trucks and investing in new towing vehicles and equipment. They are highlighting equipment in their series of towing services to stress their efficiency and efficacy in delivering towing and roadside assistance. Jaidan Larson, the company spokesperson says, "Cutting edge equipment and other towing technologies are the primary reasons why we have delivered the fastest and safest towing services in Irving, TX. This has also increased our productivity as we can accommodate more stranded motorists who needed towing rescue or other assistance."

Obriens towing offers several tow truck services such as local towing and long-distance towing, car and motorcycle towing, and wrecking services. Larson added that the revamp is also aimed at further simplifying its emergency calling and dispatching processes so that tow rescue workers can arrive at customer location faster. The company has also assigned standby towing teams in 5 key locations around Irving that can be assigned and dispatched to customer location in less than 30 minutes. Stranded drivers don't need to wait long for towing assistance as long as they are within the service coverage area of the company. Larson states, "It's so important that we give our customers the experience they expect, whether that be face-to-face during the delivery of our towing services or over the phone when talking to our dispatchers. Customer service is a job by every member of our organization."

In line with the revamp, the company also launches a new website with a refreshed look. Along with a new user interface and user experience design, the company presents a sophisticated site that showcases the evolution of the brand since opening its doors to the people of Irving, TX several years ago.

Larson explains, "We continue our commitment to serving the people in Irving by launching a new website. As innovators and experts in the towing industry, we make it a point to stay ahead of the pack through this website." Larson continues, "We invite our beloved customers and the general public to visit our new website and to contact us with towing and emergency roadside assistance needs."
