September 24, 2019

September 24, 2019 -
This Month marks the fourth annual Fix-a-Leak week to encourage Canadian?s to save water by repairing dripping faucets and faulty plumbing fixtures.

According to EPA Water Sense, more than 1 trillion gallons of water leak from Canadian homes every year. Fix-a-Leak Week is a designated time to increase awareness and improve water conservation through simple measures. Water is the world?s most precious commodity and it should be treated that way.

?People are often amazed at the volumes of water wasted through household leaks. Something that seems insignificant and often unattended by homeowners actually has a very noticeable impact on the water usage and water bill,? said Local Drain Experts ? Drain Cleaning and Clogged Drain Service owner Ms Pos.

Local Drain Experts ? Drain Cleaning and Clogged Drain Service locations across the nation are helping homeowners detect and repair leaks. The average household can save up to 10,000 gallons of water each year simply by fixing leaks.

Owner, Natalia Pos, is encouraging Canadians to join Local Drain Experts ? in the water conservation effort this week. ?As populations grow and water resources become scarcer, greener plumbing has become more important than ever before,? said Natalia

The Drain Cleaning Plumber promotes EPA WaterSense certified products and offers water conserving earth-friendly plumbing solutions that make it easy to go green. Here are a couple of DIY leak detection tests families can try to kick-off greening their plumbing during Fix-a-Leak Week.

Two Tricks for Detecting a Toilet Leak

Homeowners may not always hear water running in their toilet or see it flowing into the bowl but the toilet might be leaking water down the drain on a constant basis, up to 200 gallons per day. Here are two ways to detect toilet leaks:

Put a few drops of food coloring in the tank and wait fifteen minutes. If colored water appears in the bowl, there is a leak.

Sprinkle a pinch of flour or talcum powder on top of the water in the toilet tank. Watch it carefully. If it drifts toward the tank?s overflow tube then there may be a different kind of toilet leak called an overflow leak. Replace the float valve to solve the problem
