October 28, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Grade A Pest Specialists of Westfield provides quality pest control solutions to the Westfield, IN area and wants to warn residents about rodents. It's this time of year when the rats and mice start looking for new shelter during the colder months. Homes and properties are typically their first choice. However, structures are not the only ideal shelter for these pests.

The General Manager at Grade A Pest Specialists of Westfield states, "Cooler temps drive rodents, and other pests, into buildings and homes where it's warmer and more protected from the colder temps. If entry is gained they begin chewing and destroying anything they think stands between them and food. The best way to prevent this from happening is through a rodent inspection so you can address any issues that are present before they can make way into your personal space," the manager of Grade A Pest Specialists of Westfield said.

While the company provides pest elimination services for residential properties, they also service businesses and commercial properties. Real estate agencies could benefit as well. Visit their website to learn more about their services and find information regarding common pests in the area.

They offer inspections and can provide estimates on certain services. To speak with them just give them a call. They offer one-time treatments in addition to on-going treatments to give residents peace of mind all year long.

The business stated, "Repeated inspection of a property is necessary if you want to be sure that your pest problem isn't going to come back, it's something that lots of home owners ignore and will cost these people more over time."
