Staten Island, NY based Metro Law New York is pleased to inform the wider public that they are always ready to represent car accident victims and ensure that they receive the compensation they are due for their injuries and suffering. The personal injury law firm is adamant that each client they take on will be able to pursue every legal avenue possible to successfully resolve their case.

To begin with, the firm offers this piece of advice: contact a reliable legal representative as soon as possible following the accident. Ideally, this representative would be an attorney who is intimately familiar with car and truck accident cases. The firm warns that the client's chances of success may suffer if they retain an attorney who lacks a suitably deep understanding of no-fault insurance, adding that simply knowing the related laws is not enough. They must also be able to carry out their legal pursuits in a timely and efficient manner, such as by interviewing the client for the most pertinent information as well as making every effort to document their injuries and compile any relevant evidence.

According to Metro Law representative Robert A. Solomon PC, "Compensation is largely dependent on two distinct issues: an evaluation of the injuries sustained in the accident as well as applicable insurance law. We strongly advise that you contact us so we can take your case over for you and make sure you never feel lost. Furthermore, we assure you that we can handle virtually any type of car accident case you bring us. With more than three decades in the field, we have a wealth of experience backing up our expertise in insurance law. Illustrating this, the firm has a long history of recovering compensation for thousands of car and truck accident victims.

Solomon adds, "We encourage you not to hesitate for fear of incurring excessive charges with our firm. In fact, we give all our clients the option of receiving a free consultation. This means you may meet with us to discuss your legal options without the obligation of taking our services any further. However, we are certain that you will want to work with us once you hear what we have to say and find out what we can do for you." To request this free consultation, clients may contact the firm by phone or get in touch with them online.

These options, according to Solomon, include collaborating with a variety of experts who can help the firm, build a car accident case that is more likely to end on the client's terms. Such experts may include professional investigators who will uncover every detail of the accident in order to prove the liability of the person who inflicted (or was responsible for) the injury, accredited doctors who will examine the victim and certify that the accident caused or exacerbated the injuries in question, and even financial experts who will calculate the financial losses sustained by the victim as a result of their accident (including lost earning potential and loss of earnings).

"Each case is unique, because the extent of the damage done and the context of the accident is always different," says Solomon. "Therefore, we warn against assuming that your case will go similarly to ones that have preceded it, or at least seem to have similar aspects on the surface. You can only be sure that your case is receiving the attention it deserves and that every possible measure is being taken if you proceed alongside an attorney who has your best interests at heart."

As the firm states on their website, "We have successfully sued many insurance companies to honor coverage for serious injuries, as well as won large verdicts and settlements for thousands of injured clients. Our experience spans a countless variety of cases involving car crashes, truck accidents, motorcycle accidents, medical malpractice, nursing home injuries and more. We also represent the families of wrongful death victims."
