Alpha Therapeutics LLC, a company based in Paradise Valley, Arizona, has announced that they are manufacturing and distributing pharmaceutical cannabidiol (CBD) products and are offering wholesale CBD products for physicians and healthcare professionals nationwide. The company is a private label CBD manufacturer and has the expertise and knowledge for the development of challenging formulations for various products. They have now announced that they are offering pharmaceutical CBD products to physicians and other healthcare professionals at wholesale prices.

Geoff Dada, CEO of Alpha Therapeutics LLC, says, "We're very excited to provide our pharmaceutical cannabidiol products to physicians and other healthcare providers. These products are for pain mitigation and pain management and can help athletes and other types of patients. These products have been ascertained to contain only cannabidiol and not tetrahydrocannabinol or THC, which is the psychoactive component of marijuana."

Medically used CBD comes from the cannabis plant known as hemp. This is different from the marijuana that farmers selectively breed to increase the amount of THC, which is the type of marijuana that is geared for recreational use. The hemp plants where medically used CBD oil is extracted are rarely modified genetically.

Alpha Therapeutics LLC has conducted extensive clinical research that shows that their CBD products are effective in elderly patients and other people who have to deal with chronic illnesses in better mitigating and managing their pain. The company's CBD balms and oil tinctures have also been found to help in the management and mitigation of pain, anxiety, and other health problems.

Alpha Therapeutics also offers CBD products for athletes like the topical healing balms. This topical balm can be applied to the location of the pain and it can be used to help in the treatment of acute pain, fibromyalgia, whiplash, compression fracture pain, diabetic or other peripheral neuropathy, post-herpetic neuralgia, and other types of pain and discomfort.

Those who have tried the topical healing balm have offered some positive reviews. For example, Peter G. gave the product five stars and said, "Our son-in-law, Ben, had emergency surgery a few years ago to remove part of his colon due to ruptured diverticula. He nearly died and was left with a great deal of internal scar tissue and a 12" vertical scar. He had been taking heavy duty painkillers for the last four years until a friend recommended Alpha Therapeutics Transderm500 CBD balm. Now, instead of taking a pill when the pain gets too intense, he uses the balm. He puts a very small amount directly on his scar and the pain is gone within a few minutes. It doesn't help with the internal scar tissue pain, so we're thinking he should also try the liquid form that you ingest. That's our next purchase for him. Thank you for a great product! It has been life-changing for Ben."

There is also the System 600 CBD oil (tincture) that is to be applied sublingually to ensure immediate absorption. This has been observed to help with the pain and the anxiety that is felt by patients suffering from panic attacks, post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), mood liability/anger related burnout, and anxiety-related insomnia.

For this product, Eliza, a registered nurse, is one of those who have given it a five star rating. She said, "CBD Transderm helped recovery of my knee strain. Cut the pain way down and I healed up in a couple of days and could start training again! Highly recommend for muscle, ligament damage."

Other CBD products that can be used by athletes and other patients include the live hemp CBD oil with syringe style applicator and the CBD therapeutic massage oil. The live hemp CBD oil contains high quality cannabinoids, chlorophyll, and essential vitamins, minerals and fatty acids. The massage oil is composed of organic jojoba oil, high oleic sunflower oil, hemp seed oils, cannabinoids, and terpenes. It is for whole body massage.
