October 15, 2019 -

Minnesota residents in need of a personal injury attorney can now find the services they are looking for with McEwen & Kestner - Personal Injury Attorneys. The Inver Grove Heights, MN based law firm has, over the years, managed to build a reputation for success with car and truck accident injury cases all over Minnesota. A truck accident can leave an individual in a state of shock, be they a trucker, pedestrian, or another driver. In light of this, the firm believes it is crucial for victims to know and understand their legal rights in such a situation.

?McEwen & Kestner ? Truck Accident Lawyers are here to help you,? says the law firm. ?If you have been injured in a carrier pileup or other catastrophe, please don?t hesitate to call a truck accident lawyer. An attorney from our firm will take the time to evaluate your case. We specialize in handling carrier collision claims, and we have garnered respect within the legal profession and from past clients for our capability in the field.?

In a trucking accident, there may be multiple parties that can be held responsible for damages, and a qualified, experienced lawyer will determine who can be held responsible and how best to hold them accountable. The trucking lawyers at McEwen & Kestner will research and investigate each individual case to determine the best strategy and ensure that the client receives fair compensation. A lawyer may advise that one sues multiple parties in order to maximize compensation.

?Some people automatically assume that only the truck driver is liable when he or she causes a collision,? states McEwen & Kestner. ?Under the law, it may be possible to hold other parties accountable for the accident. A trucking company may be vicariously liable for the injuries that you have suffered but they may also be liable if they were negligent in hiring the trucker in question.? Some of the parties that may be held liable in a case include the driver, commercial trucking company, manufacturers of trucking products, distributors of trucking products, lessor, and the shipper or loader of the cargo. An experienced lawyer, like those found at McEwen & Kestner, will have the knowledge needed to determine which of the above is worth suing in order to get the largest possible compensation for their client.

Instead of stressing over which party may be liable and then trying to find a lawyer to help one seek compensation from the liable parties, one can simply contact McEwen & Kestner and have a highly experienced lawyer handle everything. The firm?s experienced truck crash attorneys are ready to handle any case and resolve any issues with precision, in a timely manner.

There are several kinds of truck accidents and they can occur due to a number of reasons. The most common types of truck accidents include sideswipes, blind spot accidents, rollover accidents, and rear-end accidents. McEwen & Kestner offers free evaluations of cases in order to establish what the best course of action is for each client.

A number of clients have left positive reviews of the service they received at McEwen & Kestner. One five star testimonial by Ken Levinson reads, ?Pete Kestner is one of the most talented trucking lawyers in the county. Pete has become an expert in the intricacies of the trucking industry, federal regulations, and complex insurance coverage. He has trained hundreds of attorneys to better represent their injured clients, speaking at trial lawyer programs in virtually every state. Pete is also a leader in the trucking litigation group at AAJ and is a key player in helping make the public safer from dangerous trucking companies and drivers. I have witnessed Pete's abilities first hand working on trucking cases with him. Pete maximizes results for his clients using his creativity, knowledge, and old fashioned hard work. Moreover, Pete is a wonderful, caring person. I am honored to know him. If you are looking for an attorney to help you, I highly recommend having Pete and his team on your side.?

Anyone looking to have one of the best US trucking lawyers work on their case is encouraged to contact McEwen & Kestner. More information can also be found on the firm?s official website.
