Albuquerque Tree Removal, a company based in Albuquerque, New Mexico, has announced that they have begun serving the South Valley region. South Valley is a census-designated place that is part of the Albuquerque Metropolitan Statistical Area. It is an unincorporated area in Bernalillo County that is located south of the city limits of Albuquerque. The company has been servicing trees in Albuquerque for more than 30 years. This includes the removal or trimming of trees in order to care for the health of trees or to get them out of the way.

Trevor, a spokesperson for Albuquerque Tree Removal, says, "We're so excited to announce that we have started expanding and servicing the South Valley region. We are known for our high-quality tree maintenance, tree removals and professional arborists. We offer affordable rates for local homeowners and business owners alike and they have given us consistently positive reviews since the started doing business."

Only recently, a satisfied customer has left a five-star review on the company's Google Maps page. Elijah L. said, "Did a great and very tidy job of removing a few trees for us. We were impressed with their attention to our yard and they took great care not to trample other plants or disrupt our berms with their equipment. We will call them again to help with some further landscaping needs.?

Trevor points out that all of their tree doctors are certified and appropriately trained to handle the equipment from the light saws that they utilize for pruning trees to the heavy-duty equipment that they use for cutting down huge dying trees. Safety is a top concern with Albuquerque Tree Removal.

Each tree surgeon employed by the company is a licensed professional, who is knowledgeable regarding the various kinds of trees, vines, shrubs, and other perennial woody plants, on how to care for them, including how to prune them or trim them properly. They often work near power lines because a common task for arborists is to trim down trees that are getting too close to power lines.

The company is also often called upon to render emergency tree removal service after a storm. The tree professionals from the company will go to the site and examine the trees and determine which one of them will need to be removed and which ones can be saved. Homeowners and property owners may also notice that some of the trees in their yard appear to be dying. They will then call on the company so that they can send tree experts to look at the trees and find out whether those trees will need to be removed or they can still be treated to get rid of the disease.

Meanwhile, some homeowners and property owners may be tempted to do the tree removal themselves. However, Trevor wants to caution them that the task is very dangerous and only those that have the knowledge and the proper training and equipment should engage in tree removal. In determining the cost of tree removal, the company will take into account several factors. These include the type of tree, the health of the tree, the size and height of the tree, accessibility, and the client's needs and specifications.

Albuquerque Tree Removal also offers tree maintenance services. These may include providing trimming and pruning services. The arborists from the company know-how and where to trim the trees so that their health is enhanced and not put at risk. This may also include the treatment of diseased trees that could mean cutting off some branches to prevent the disease from spreading to other parts of the tree and to other nearby trees. This may also include trimming some branches to ensure proper clearance from electric power lines, to the garage, or a part of the home to avoid the risk of the tree branches hitting the house or the power lines and causing damage to life and property.

Those who are interested in the tree service provided by Albuquerque Tree Removal can visit their website or contact them through the phone or via email. They are open from 8:00 am to 8:00 pm, from Monday to Sunday.
