It is advisable to get a home for sale listed through a flat fee broker because 87 percent of home buyers got their home through a real estate agent or broker. This share has actually steadily increased from just 69 percent in 2001. Also, buyers agents are usually not motivated to show FSBO listings because of the lower commissions. By listing through a flat fee broker and providing a competitive buyers agency commission, homes are sold for an average of 17 percent more.

They offer five types of plans for home sellers. These are the Basic, Bronze, Silver, Gold, and Ultimate. The Basic plan offers limited service, allowing only up to 15 photos in the MLS and listing for six months. On the other hand, the Ultimate plan is full service, allowing up to 50 photos and listing for 12 months. Our team will market your property and it will have first-class appeal."

The representative points out that listing on the MLS for a flat fee is actually the same thing as getting listed with a six percent realtor. Home sellers are basically paying only for the services that they need. The listing will look exactly the same as all the other listings and the homeowner can sell the property without needing an agent and therefore will not need to pay a buyers agent commission. However, it should be pointed out that if a buyers agent is able to bring a buyer, that agent will have to be given a commission.
