October 23, 2019 -
Gastro Center NJ is offering treatment to New Jersey patients that may be experiencing any of a number of stomach issues, including severe diarrhea, irritable bowel syndrome, hemorrhoids, ulcers, Crohn?s disease, ulcers, and more. They perform routine screenings and outpatient procedures for digestive health.

?One of the most crucial parts of your body is your digestive system, so keeping it running at optimal efficiency is essential towards maintaining your health,? says the clinic?s gastroenterologist, Dr. Theodore A. DaCosta. ?Letting your digestive system deteriorate can lead to both embarrassing and serious results, but dealing with digestive disorders on your own might be overwhelming at times. At the Gastro Center of NJ, we prioritize your digestive health. Our highly trained professional gastroenterologists treat our patients with the most modern approaches and the most advanced medical technologies. We strive to accommodate the unique needs of every patient because we understand the value of health and happiness for your body and mind.?

Gastro Center NJ assists patients with a variety of stomach issues under Dr. DaCosta?s award winning experience and oversight. He is a highly qualified specialist in internal medicine, and has worked in the medical field for nearly 30 years. An expert in the diagnosis and treatment of conditions involving the digestive/gastrointestinal tract, he has the skills and equipment required to treat all kinds of stomach issues with ease.

Gastroenterology is the study and care of organs in the gastrointestinal system, the internal network that digests food in the body. This system includes the mouth, esophagus, stomach, liver, gallbladder, pancreas, large intestine, small intestine, and anus. As with any other part of the body, a lot can go wrong with the gastrointestinal organs, so it is important to get any issues that may arise treated as soon as possible?especially since the health of the digestive tract is linked to the health of the entire body.

The digestive system is constantly at work turning food and drink into smaller parts to be absorbed and used for various purposes throughout the body, including growth and the generation of energy. Every organ has a role in transporting essential nutrients throughout the body and breaking them down, and one may experience a number of side effects if any part begins to malfunction, from small issues to life threatening complications. There are ways one can tell if they have a problem somewhere in their digestive tract. Should one experience symptoms like rectal bleeding, acid reflux, irregular or unusual bowel movements, bloating, indigestion, or any other form of discomfort or pain around the chest, gut, or bowels, it may be time to see a gastroenterologist. ?In some cases, you may think that an issue will simply go away on its own or not get worse,? says Gastro Center NJ. ?You may also not think to see a gastroenterologist until something even worse occurs. However, a stomach specialist is best equipped to identify and treat the widest range of symptoms related to your GI tract. Early detection is critical to ensuring that your condition can be treated before it becomes irreversible. Time is of the essence in many gastroenterology conditions.?

Dr. DaCosta offers a number of procedures at Gastro Center NJ to help identify and treat gastrointestinal issues, including colonoscopy, capsule endoscopy, haemorrhoid ablation, upper endoscopy, anorectal manometry, and much more. If one has already been diagnosed with digestive conditions, they can still find the regular care they need at the specialized clinic.

A number of patients have visited Dr. DaCosta, and most are quite pleased with the effectiveness of the treatment they received. James King, one of his patients, is quoted saying, ?I?ve had sporadic stomach cramps and gassiness for as long as I can remember. For the longest time, I was convinced I had colon cancer. I went to Dr. DaCosta and he screened me immediately. The results came out negative but he was able to help me out in the end. It turns out I was experiencing severe episodic constipation, so he recommended a new diet for me. I honestly feel so much better now thanks to him.?
