Dr. Dacosta at Gastro Center NJ treats patients experiencing any number of stomach issues, severe diarrhea, irritable bowel syndrome, hemorrhoids, ulcers, Crohn's disease, ulcers and more. The Gastroenterologist Center of New Jersey performs routine screenings and outpatient procedures for digestive health.

A representative for the practice says, ?The digestive system is a complex and very important system in the body. When it is not working properly, we can feel sluggish at best. An improperly working digestive system can actually lead to very serious problems down the road and should be checked as quickly as possible.?

The practice states that they specialize in and focus on digestive health and any issues that may affect it. The office is staffed with trained and experienced gastroenterologists who treat patients on an individualized basis.

?We know that no two patients are alike,? says the representative for the practice. ?We realize that each patient is unique and as such, their digestive issues are also unique. We do not use a cookie cutter treatment but treat each patient depending on their specific issues. While patients may have the same disorder or disease, their treatments may be different depending on the individual and what may have worked or not worked for them in the past.?

The center treats a wide range of digestive issues such as celiac disease, colon cancer, IBS, peptic ulcers, hemorrhoids, hepatitis and other issues. A complete list of the issues that can be treated at the center can be seen on their website at https://sites.google.com/site/gastroenterologistnj/.

Dr. DaCosta has received numerous accolades for his work in the digestive field, including New Jersey?s TopDocs Top Doctor for 2019. Dr. DaCosta is a member of a number of professional associations, including the American Medical Association, the College of Gastroenterology Medical Society of New Jersey and the Gastroenterology and Endoscopy Society of New Jersey.

The center?s website offers more information on the various treatment options that they offer as well as the many issues and diseases that they treat. Dr. DaCosta says that their office is normally the recipient of a number of references from general practitioners in the area for patients who require a digestive specialist. Some of the procedures offered by the center include colonoscopy, hemorrhoid ablation, anorectal manometry and various others.

Dr. DaCosta urges those who are experiencing digestive difficulties to seek the advice and treatment of a physician. He adds that the digestive system is an important part of the function of the body and that issues with the digestive system can signal a much more serious condition. Those who have problems with digestion can contact the center to speak with a specialist or contact their regular physician to request a referral.
