Burlington County, NJ is the second largest county in the state, only behind Ocean County which leads by a relatively small margin. The county is home to roughly 500,000 residents who are mostly condensed within Evesham Township which is home to around 50,000 people.

The real estate market is listed as "very hot" on Zillow's market temperature map which indicates that right now it is mainly a sellers market. The median rent price in Burlington County is $1650 which is higher than the Philadelphia Metro average of $1575. House Flipping Companies like Rapid Home Liquidation will offer local Burlington County homeowners cash for their houses in Mount Laurel, Chatsworth, Marlton, Moorestown, Willingboro, Palmyra, Browns Mills, Burlington, Roebling, Bordentown, Mount Holly, Evesham, Shamong, and Tabernacle South Jersey. They also purchase and flip homes in Wharton State Forest and Lebanon State Forest no matter how desolate or remote the location is.

Sellers who want to sell their Burlington County, South Jersey homes fast can benefit from having a real estate investor who is willing to buy their house fast with cash because it can provide a series of advantages that don't normally apply when you are listing your home on the open market with a licensed realtor. Selling a property to a local house flipper can also be beneficial to homeowners who are stuck paying expensive monthly holding costs such as taxes, utilities, and other recurring charges.

Investors will sometimes even buy homes that have mold problems, foundation issues, or bad septic tanks. These homes cannot be listed on the market because no lender will fund a deal where the property needs major structural repairs, so the seller either needs to make the repairs themselves or locate a cash buyer who will purchase the home in its current condition.

After rehabbing the home, the investment company will then relist it back on the open market at or just under full market value so they can get a fast closing and make their profits, and then move onto the next deal. Rapid Home Liquidation has flipped two properties in South Jersey within the past couple of months, and now they are looking to flip a house in Burlington County hopefully somewhere near or within the state forests.
