

Financial Aid Provider Ramps Up Services As San Diego Gets More Expensive To Live In

October 31, 2019

October 31, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

San Diego, CA based Big Car Title Loans (BCTL) is stepping up their efforts to make themselves and their services available to local communities in light of the growing cost of living in San Diego. While the city boasts a world-famous reputation for its landmarks and lifestyles, this often does not take into account the families and individuals who cannot keep up with the soaring expenses they have to deal with as each year goes by. In response, BCTL is reaching out to make sure that every person who needs financial help is aware of, and able to engage, their services. A metaphor for this disparity between the city's elite and those struggling to make their paycheck last to the end of the month can be illustrated in how the city has handled their recent push to encourage electric scooter use among the population. While the novel mode of transport, even considering its entry prices, represents a much more economical (not to mention environmentally friendly) alternative to buying a new car in the future, the San Diego County Grand Jury found that the city has failed to regulate scooter safety as quickly as their counterparts in other cities. The San Diego City Council disagrees with this assessment, but it is an example of how innovation, technology, and enterprise can get ahead of the government's ability to consider the practical ramifications faced by its people.

Similarly, while San Diego is known for being a hub of international trade, manufacturing, military development, and tourism, these highlights often miss the fact that people who are not at the forefront of these industries have to endure a great deal of trouble making a living wage.

Housing and transportation costs, in particular, represent some of the more sizeable investments that the city's residents have to make to preserve their standard of living. Housing costs alone may be the most significant contributor to homelessness in the city. It is notable that the city received millions in federal funding to combat homelessness in 2018 after a survey found that more than 8,000 people are forced to live without a place to call their own. Big Car Title Loans is therefore pleased to inform the members of their community that the company's auto title based financial services are always a mere phone call away. The company adds, "Many people will want to contact one of our friendly, trained customer service representatives to discuss how we can help them, but others will be pleased to learn that our website has been designed from the ground up to support online applications as well. Whichever process you prefer, we've taken measures to ensure that your application will be as smooth and convenient as possible; you can have the cash you need in your hands in as few as 24 hours. In many cases, it even takes less time than that. If you have a car that you own outright and is lien-free, you can rest assured that you will have many more options for tackling the next emergency you run into. Whether or not your future includes an electric scooter, you can put your vehicle to good use today. Just get in touch with us to get started."

The core of their services revolves around the use of their customer's car title as collateral for a financial advance. The company requires that certain parameters be fulfilled to engage their services, such as the applicant being able to show proof of income, residency, and so on, but these requirements often fall far short of those demanded at more conventional financial institutions (such as banks).

For instance, the company does not disqualify applicants simply because they have bad credit or have had to file for bankruptcy in the past. BCTL understands that people in these positions are often the ones who most need help. Crucially, the company also engages borrowers in discussion to come up with a repayment plan that they can afford to keep up with. As they have no desire to draw their customers into further financial strain, these plans allow them to address the emergency they face on short notice and then go on to repay the company in a manner that they can keep up with.
