October 28, 2019 -
Austin, Texas based optometrist Austin Vision Therapy Center is pleased to announce that they provide eye care services for children. The clinic specializes in vision therapy and is dedicated to subjects of developmental, behavioral, and neuro-optometry.

Dr. Denise Smith, owner of Austin Vision Therapy Center, says, ?Everyone sees things differently since the power of their eyesight varies. Unfortunately, this is not an issue that can simply be solved by reading a few letters on an eye chart and then slapping on a pair of glasses. We know how crucially vision can affect a person?s entire life and we also know that we can do a lot of good if you start treating any vision problems as soon as possible. With our specialized eye care programs for children, we can help your little ones prepare for a better life.?

The clinic?s vision therapy process is considered to be one of the best kept secrets when it comes to solving vision problems that go beyond traditional eye care and glasses. In simple terms, what vision therapy does is teach the patients? eyes to work efficiently and allow their brain to process information in a more effective manner. Austin Vision Therapy Center?s vision therapy programs are conducted by a team of skilled healthcare professionals using the most up to date treatment methodologies.

?At Austin Vision Therapy Center, we have an immense amount of experience and expertise that has allowed us to create a cutting edge pediatric eye care program,? affirms Dr. Smith. ?With our help, your children can make the most of their lives, academically, professionally, athletically, and neurologically.?

She continues, ?Our clinic was founded with a simple goal in mind. We wanted to transform the lives of people who were frustrated and searching for answers to their vision problems. A lot of people are looking for an alternative to the traditional medical model, which most often just ?treats the symptoms? and stops there. Today, we are able to provide solutions to problems with vision development, learning disabilities, strabismus and amblyopia, attention deficit disorders, and traumatic brain injury. Excellence is our only standard here at Austin Vision Therapy Center, and I?m proud to say that we excel at what we do.?

The optometrist?s dedication to providing excellent eye care has earned them a large, loyal client base. On Google, Austin Vision Therapy Center is rated 4.9/5 Stars, aggregated from more than 70 reviews. In a recent five star review, Mary Erickson says, ?Absolutely a believer in vision therapy! Both my children have made significant progress with peripheral vision, tracking and near/far focusing. My son had lots of trouble skipping over words when reading and now reads smoothly, and no longer rubs his eyes or avoids reading! Both children have improved their performance in their sports as well. All of these improvements have been observed with only two months of therapy! We are excited to see continued progress!?

In another review, Candace Bland says, ?We are halfway through vision therapy! One year into a two-year program. The difference it has made in my daughter's life is huge. Dr. Smith and her staff are wonderful. Tracie at the front desk is the best; she goes out of her way to help answer questions or make scheduling work. We will definitely miss them all when we finish Vision Therapy!?

The clinic boasts a perfect rating on Facebook. Bethany Parish says, ?Dr Bailey has been working with my son for several months. We have seen amazing results with his reading and object tracking, and the feedback we've received at school has been fantastic! We highly recommend vision therapy and are very thankful for the fabulous team at Austin Vision Therapy Center.?
