Watersound, Florida based Hilary & Reverie is pleased to announce that discerning homeowners may now take their pick of homes in Lakeview Estates, a beautiful gated community in South Walton that consists of under 60 coastal traditional style properties. According to the real estate firm, each of these homes boasts a retinue of exclusive amenities and stunning interior finishes that are sure to welcome all kinds of families. Learn more at the following link: lakeviewestates30A.com.

As the name suggests, the homes in Lakeview Estates enjoy access to a picturesque and inviting 4-acre, spring-fed lake that can allow for long and memorable family adventures. Whether they wish to lounge on its borders during a holiday or try their hand at fishing out the innumerable bass that reside within, the lake promises its visitors an endless supply of calm, tranquility, and time away from the rest of the world. Those with environmental concerns will also be pleased to know that fishing is allowed only on a strict catch and release policy. This means that the local ecology will not suffer from overfishing, and those who consider themselves expert anglers will never have to worry about the lake running dry of their favourite entertainment.

The lake is not the community's only access to water amenities, however. Residents may also make use of the open air community pool that comes complete with modern bath facilities. Families, especially, are invited to spend as much time here as they see fit, whether they want to try their hand at competitive pool games with each other or sunbathe on the spacious sides. The pool is perfectly framed by an inner boundary of young trees and an outer median of grass, giving the space its own distinctive niche within the area. It functions as the perfect venue for a multitude of activities, from a swift morning swim to an evening spent enjoying the water in the company of family and friends.

One of the hallmarks of the community is the access it provides. In some ways, this access is represented in the ease with which residents can build enduring memories in their homes and connect with their neighbors. However, Lakeview Estates is also designed to give its community a more literal form of access, so new homeowners will be pleased to find that they can easily reach both Highway 98 and the scenic Highway 30A in a matter of minutes upon leaving their home. This puts them within reach of Dune Allen, Grayton Beach, Seagrove Beach, Seagrove Beach, and many more attractive locations.

Furthermore, they will find that a private pedestrian path (that is conveniently wide enough to accommodate a golf cart) in the community leads directly to the nearby Helen McCall Park. Those who are new to the area only have to read reviews from park visitors to learn what they stand to gain through their close proximity to its grounds. On Facebook, for instance, Kathleen Turner says that it is a, "Great park that we stop at when traveling between Panama City and Destin. Love the splash pad area. Always clean, and it's gated for younger children—a mommy plus!" She continues that it features, "Lots of climbing areas and slides. Shady trees and great bench locations for watching your little ones and having a moment too."

According to the team behind Lakeview Estates, "At Lakeview Estates, our commitment to cultivating an inspired lifestyle that you can truly call home means developing vibrant communities where people can engage, connect, and feel like they belong. Our Coastal Traditional homes are steeped in architectural design, blurring the lines between indoors and out, crafting homes with spaces and features that embrace the Florida lifestyle." Notably, those who wish to explore further may contact the community's representatives to schedule a model home and lifestyle tour at their convenience.

Interested families may reach out to Hilary & Reverie to learn more about this opportunity to join a vibrant new lakeside community. More information can also be found on their website, and social media users may connect with the firm through their preferred platform to follow up on any further inquiries.
