One Source views its inclusion as emphasizing One Source?s capabilities in areas beyond fixed and mobile management

Greenville, N.C. ? One Source Communication, LLC has been profiled in research firm Gartner?s 2019 Market Guide for Telecom Expense Management Services.

One Source Communications is one of 11 representative TEM pure-play vendors for regional delivery profiled in the report.

Gartner stated, ?TEM is a specific, but challenging function within IT and cost management. TEM providers are evolving their offerings as enterprises? ranges of fixed (voice and data) and mobile devices grow and incorporate other services and communications-related asset tracking. These offerings include inventory tracking of cloud/consumption-based services; other IT-related services, such as unified communications and collaboration (UCC); voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP); and IoT expense management as enterprises embrace digitalization.?

One Source further specializes in Managed Security Services and Managed IT Services, including implementing cloud solutions and next-generation networking such as SD-WAN, as well as ?as a service? platforms such as SaaS and UCaaS.

More midsize enterprises (organizations with less than $1 billion in revenue) seek to control their telecom, mobility, cloud and other communications costs, but find that many technology management vendors do not target their specific requirements.

One Source serves enterprises in North America spending between $500,000 and $50 million each year on communications services, and supporting anywhere from 500 to 40,000 devices ? and it does so with a fully managed approach. With dedicated specialists, One Source provides real-time solutioning, service delivery, and full lifecycle management. All this includes portfolio optimization, sourcing, ordering, procurement, expense management, bill payment, usage optimization, cost recovery, service and support help desk.

"Midsize enterprises have unique technology and budget needs and concerns that certain telecom expense management vendors just can?t address," said Kirk Waddell, executive vice president of technology at One Source. "We specialize in this space, and we bring years of experience, knowledge and proven company stability to our clients. We?re very proud to be part of Gartner?s newly published report."
