All Clean Air Duct Cleaning, based in Centerville, Utah, is delighted to announce that they have now extended their specialized Dryer Vent Cleaning service to Park City homeowners and property managers. The company advises that dryer vent cleaning is undertaken on a regular basis.

Daryl Olsen, Owner of All Clean Air Duct Clean says, "Getting the dryer vent cleaned at the same time as the rest of the property's air ducts means you don't have to remember to do it yourself. This will ensure that your dryer will continue to be as energy efficient as possible and save money in the long run. If you haven't already prepared for winter, make sure you book soon to ensure your air ducts are also free from accumulated dirt, dust, debris, dust mites, molds, and other contaminants which reduce the efficiency of your heating systems as well as impact the health of all the occupants in the household."

The air duct cleaning company serves communities throughout Northern Utah, and they have built a reputation for providing the best cleaning services in the area. Even the most careful comparison shoppers have praised the firm's outstanding service and price competitiveness. Paul, a customer, gave them 5 Stars on Google, saying, "Our ducts had not been cleaned, possibly since the house was built, and we can tell the difference now. Thank you for the cleaning and sanitizing.?

Many people still fail to make the connection that dust in the ducts can lead to health problems and affect the efficiency of their HVAC systems. Park City Utah dryer vent cleaning is necessary to do that very same job for dryer vents. It also ensures that clothes are not overheated in attempts to get them dry. Dirty dryer ducts can also pose a serious fire hazard, with lint filled dryer ducts being identified as a major fire source.

Many people attempt to clean their ducts themselves but fail to get all the debris out. Having purchased a dryer vent cleaning kit and worked hard to make their best attempt to get it all, they may be unprepared for the amount of lint that comes flooding out of the wall. They often find their vacuums are never the same again either, unless it too gets a thorough clean. Hiring professionals, like the team at All Clean Air Duct Cleaning, who can handle the job saves them time, effort and stress about getting the job done well.

The company was recently featured on StreetInsider, in an article announcing the launch of the Dryer Vent Cleaning Services for the Provo community. In it, Olsen says, "If you are thinking about cleaning your dryer vents by yourself, there are several things that you must take into consideration. For example, you should check your lint filter every time you use your dryer and ensure that it is not clogged. You should clean it even if it presents the mildest sign of lint, as such a buildup could travel further into your vent and cause a blockage further inside your dryer vent system."

The article highlights that, over time, debris that is significantly more difficult to remove will inevitably accumulate deeper within the system and obstruct proper airflow in the dryer vents. The firm does not recommend that homeowners who are inexperienced undertake the process of running a deep clean. Olsen says the best course of action to take in these situations is to schedule a dryer vent cleaning with a company that specializes in the field.

He continues, "Our technicians have the experience and equipment required to get the job done safely. Furthermore, they are both certified and insured. We have built our reputation on helping householders, one family at a time, so we know how important it is to do the job well, even when homeowners are unaware of what is at stake." He adds, "By providing transparent pricing on options, we ensure that our customers are never surprised about any additional hidden charges."

Helping keep homes healthy is a key priority for the company, and their customers note the difference they make in their online views. All Clean Air Duct Cleaning notably holds a 4.9/5 Star review score on Google. In her review, Leah Bingham says, "I filtered each company's reviews on Google from lowest to highest ratings and went from there. I am so happy that I went with All Clean Air Duct Cleaning. The cost they gave me over the phone is what I paid. Justin (the technician that came out) knew what he was doing and did a fantastic job! Justin exceeded all expectations! He worked so hard and got all of my ducts squeaky clean! There weren't any hidden costs.?

Bingham concludes, "I did decide while he was here that I wanted the dryer vent cleaned, but even though that was added on in the last moment, it didn't add much to my bill. In the end, my total cost for the whole job (including sanitizing) was a little more than $400. I am beyond happy with this whole experience, and I wholeheartedly recommend All Clean Air Duct Cleaning!?"
