August 18, 2015 -

DentalTek, a Centennial, Colorado based software company, has announced the launch of their newest cloud based dental software in late October 2015. DentalTek currently takes 3rd party dental practice management software data including patient information, dental records, etc., and backs it up to cloud servers which makes it viewable to anyone in the office through a web based interface.

The newest version, DentalTek 2.0, will incorporate five different technologies into one redesigned web interface. DentalTek is currently the only company that is integrating all of the solutions included in this newest launch.

Meridith Hertach, spokesperson for DentalTek, recently stated, "Our software is unique because it gives users five technologies in one cloud based solution. It's dental practice management at its easiest and most affordable. We're excited to be rolling out the new 2.0 version and can't wait for our clients to see how efficient and affordable managing their dental practices can be."

DentalTek provides practice management integration, smart office phone technology, rapid call technology, paperless forms, and patient reminders all in one system.

The company stresses that no training is needed and there is no conversion requirement. The platform simply makes an existing infrastructure more efficient, which saves dental practices money on hardware costs. No new server is required, so ongoing maintenance costs are also kept to a minimum.

Since cloud software stays up to date, there is no need for updates on every computer in every workstation, which can save time and ultimately, money. DentalTek manages all critical systems from a single source, making dental practice management easier and more affordable.

Toni L. is an office manager at a dental practice in New York, and states, "A simpler system would be wonderful. Honestly, it takes so much time and there are so many processes that having everything in one system seems impossible, but DentalTek has done it and I for one, couldn't be happier."

Dental practices interested in learning more about the release of DentalTek 2.0, or the company in general, can visit them at their official website, found at <http://dentaltek.com>.
