NuYu Massage Colorado Springs has announced its partnership with Serenity Balance Massage. When it comes to massage Colorado Springs residents have expressed a demand for a variety of different types of massages. And now, thanks to the partnership, NuYu aims to be able to deliver them all.

"We noticed that people wanted to receive excellent massage therapy, while we are in the process of opening our Float Center we wanted to serve our customers and help them relax and heal," says a representative of NuYu Massage Colorado Springs. "We simply wanted to help our customers! Thanks to our new partnership, our customers will be able to receive all the services they would like to get."

The NuYu Float Center will soon open its doors. Here, Colorado Springs residents will be able to enjoy sensory deprivation and its many benefits, something that is not offered in many places yet. The grand opening date will soon be revealed. At the same time, customers will be able to continue to go to NuYu Massage Colorado Springs for their regular massage requirements.

"We believe in the need to experience the benefits of massage and floating in an isolation tank," adds the representative. "Feel free to learn more about floating and in the meantime feel free to escape, heal and transform yourself through massage therapy."

NuYu, through its new partnership with Serenity Balance Massage, will also continue to be able to offer a range of different massages. They company has noticed that most of their customers come to them when they are stressed, which is exhibited in a number of physical symptoms as well. They suffer from back and neck pain, frequent headaches and more. Through the healing powers of massage, these can be reduced.

The floatation tank, once completed, will give people an even greater benefit. By going through sensory deprivation Colorado Springs residents will truly be able to experience having their stresses melt away from them. This is because they will not be exposed to various environmental stresses, including sound, light, and gravity, for the duration of their treatment.
