December 06, 2019 -

RLP Maximum, based in Woodbridge, Ontario, has announced that the Toronto real estate market continues to grow because of the high demand for detached houses. It has been observed that after a two-year decline in demand for detached homes in the 905 areas, this type of homes are now selling more quickly in the downtown core. Suburbs such as Oakville, Mississauga, and Newmarket have reported significant gains in sales and all 30 of the 905 neighbourhoods have experienced a rise in both home buying activity and sales of detached homes. Those who are planning to buy a home are advised not to wait too long as prices of homes in every city in Canada, except for Regina and Saskatoon, are expected to rise over the next five years.

A spokesperson for RLP Maximum says, ?Now is the time to buy a home before the prices increase beyond your buying capacity. We have several detached homes available for sale. Check out our website and do a search to find the detached homes surrounding Greater Toronto that are within your budget and then make your choice based on other factors, such as number of bedrooms, number of bathrooms, amenities, and more.?
